IN Chief Justice Wilbur of California's Supreme Court the President has selected an able man, whose environment has been California, looking out toward the Pacific Ocean and what lies beyond. Secretary Wilbur will represent all real Americans, who say "Keep out" to those we don't want, and realize that flying machines and submarines are needed to back up that order.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S selection is a good choice and good politics. If the President wins in the next election, he will have to beat California's favorite, Hiram Johnson. By selecting a Californian for the navy, the wise man from Massachusetts will soften that blow.

NEW YORK'S gas and electric light companies plan to buy the Chicago & Illinois Western Railroad to insure a coal supply. Nobody says to them, "YOU can't manage railroads. Only born railroad men can do that."

Henry Ford can run a railroad; any gas company, packing concern or mining company can run a railroad. But when Uncle Sam suggests running a railroad everybody says, "YOU don't know enough. YOU are not honest enough. YOU are not able enough. Please forget about it."

RAILROADS are doing well. The Southern Railway, that fell to $1 a share, now pays 5 per cent. dividend, and sells at fifty-five, 106,000 shares being bought in one day. Those that bought knew that the dividend was coming.

There will be more dividend payers among the weak railroads, now that they are allowed "to write their own tickets" by a benevolent government. But be careful how YOU gamble in such things. Remember YOU are not an insider.

MRS. ELINOR GLYN, with her equally charming young daughter, Lady Williams, leaving for California, says of America's beautiful prohibition:

"What do parents expect from children when they break the law before them in their own houses? The son sees the father break the law in one way, will he not think it right to break it in another?

"That's one thing. This is the other:

"Many young people in America drink a great deal too much. Tell them that getting drunk is worse than wicked, it's VULGAR. Many not at all ashamed to be wicked are ashamed of being vulgar."

THE GREAT telephone monopoly says it doesn't, after all, claim exclusive possession of the ether, reserving to itself all radio rights from the surface of the United States right up to the blue star Vega that shines every night straight above telephone headquarters.

THAT'S wise decision.

The great telephone company is doing well. It would be foolish to give the people too violent a cause for complaint. When the people become agitated, you can't tell where they will stop.

Socrates' "not too much, not too little" should be the motto of great concerns that are the real government of the United States.

IF YOU WERE wise enough not to gamble in francs by selling short, continue wise and don't gamble on the "long" side. It's dangerous business either way. In Vienna, they sold "short" ten times as much French money as

FIGHT FILM PLOT TOLD AT DAUGHERTY HEARING

REDMOND'S 'MR. S.' IS NAMED

W. E. Sheridan, Old-Time Promoter, Called Business Genius of Firm

Further revelations have been made by investigators searching into the story of the gigantic stock brokerage scheme fostered by the mysterious "Mr. S." guiding genius of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., and halted last week by United States authorities.

This "Mr. S." man of mystery and millions, in whose brain was born the "partial payment" scheme of stock gambling, is William E. Sheridan of No. 109 Abbotsford road, Brookline.

It was Sheridan and not Redmond who built up the organization which has taken millions of dollars annually from the pockets of working men and women, according to officials investigating.

"Daddy" Sheridan, he was called by the employes of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc.

BUSINESS GENIUS

Affable, kindly in appearance and action, a genius at organization and a master hand at letter writing, "Daddy" Sheridan is held by investigators to have evolved the idea of the partial payment house after a nation-wide campaign had put the old time "bucket shop" out of existence.

George F. Redmond, former restaurant bus boy, was struggling along in a dingy office when Sheridan "came from out the West" with his partial payment scheme.

Today Redmond and James Lamont, treasurer and president, respectively of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., are at liberty under bond, awaiting trial on charges of using the mails to defraud.

No more romantic figure ever appeared in the world of finance than "Daddy" Sheridan. He is the exact opposite type from Thomas W. Lawson, who gloried in publicity.

Sheridan was willing to let Redmond get any glory there might be in being the ostensible builder of the partial payment scheme, investigators say. Sheridan was content to let Redmond and Lamont hold the official titles in the firm.

PAID $1,000 WEEKLY

Next Monday the special session of the Suffolk County grand jury will investigate, among other things the connection of "Daddy" Sheridan with G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc. Local authorities are anxious to know just what part Sheridan played in the affairs of the bankrupt brokerage house.

Investigators have learned that

MISSING BRIDE WHO IS SOUGHT HERE

ANNA KRAMPF AND LETTER

Brooklyn girl and "Jack," her husband of a month, mysteriously disappear, leaving no clew for father who appeals to Boston police to help him in his search so far fruitless. She writes parents giving them names and address in Brookline, which prove fictitious. "Jack's" last name not given in missive.

BRIDE AND HUSBAND MISSING

Anna Krampf Sends Home a Fictitious Address; Father Starts Search Here

A bride and bridegroom have vanished in Boston, as the latest "disappearance mystery" confronting the police.

Married only a month and in Boston on her honeymoon, the bride, formerly Miss Anna Krampf of Brooklyn, N. Y., wrote her mother and father two letters and has not been heard from since.

A Brookline address she sent her parents is one that does not exist in Brookline.

The name of the woman she said she and her new husband were staying with is not listed in any Boston or Brookline directory or telephone book.

Urged by an occurrence that led him to believe something was wrong with his daughter's married life, her father, John Krampf of No. 853 Vernon avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., came to Boston and searched in vain for the bride.

Now he has turned the mystery case over to the Boston police.

The bride and bridegroom—"Anna" and "Jack"—left New York on the night of February 16, according to one of the two letters she wrote. In this letter she asked her father and mother to write her.

She did not give "Jack's" last name.

"You can write," she said, "to Mrs. L. F. Southard, care of Mrs. Oral Pomeroy, No. 823 Howard avenue, Brookline, Mass."

There is no Howard avenue in Brookline. There is a Howard avenue in Roxbury, but the numbers do not run as high at 823.

There is no L. F. Southard or Mrs. Oral Pomeroy listed in any Boston or Brookline directory or telephone book.

The address she described as "Jack's sister's house."

MOHAWK TRAIL TO BE EXTENDED TO N. Y.

North Adams, March 15.—The Mohawk trail route will be extended from Williamstown over Petersburg mountain to the New York State Highway, according to the State Highway Department today. Work of constructing the new route will be begun this year.

A special meeting of the Selectmen of Williamstown to vote on the project has been called for Tuesday. Two miles of the new road, which will eventually complete a direct route from Boston to Troy, N. Y., will be finished this year. The route already has been surveyed.

CAMBRIDGE CROOKS WORK FOR SMALL PAY

Safe crackers who entered the jewelry and clock factory of William St. Cœur at No. 95 Harvey street, North Cambridge, early today, secured $25 in money and a gold watch, officials of the factory believed the thieves hoped to get the company payroll which was not received, however, until late in the forenoon. The safe was opened by breaking off the combination dial.

75-YEAR-OLD AUTO VIOLATOR BANISHED

St. Louis, March 15.—John T. Milliken, seventy-five years old, son of the late wealthy chemical manufacturer, today was banished from Missouri under penalty of ninety days' imprisonment if he returns. Milliken said he was going to California. He has been arrested a number of times for violating traffic regulations and today was sentenced to ninety days' imprisonment in connection with a shooting a year ago. On his promise to leave the State he was permitted to go free.

GARMENT WORKERS TO VOTE ON OFFER

The offer of the Boston waist and dress manufacturers of a forty-two-hour-week beginning on July 1 will be voted upon Monday by the striking garment workers. The manufacturers assert that at least three months' time is necessary before they can put the forty-two-hour-week into effect. Union leaders claim the manufacturers are playing for time and that the forty-two-hour-week can be put into effect at once. Union officials predict the offer will be refused.

2 VESSELS SUNK OFF CAPE

One Thought to Be 6-Master Wyoming; Identity of the Other Unknown

Vineyard Haven, March 15.—The coast guard cutter Acushnet returned to Woods Holl today, because the sea was too rough to enable her to resume her work of trying to pull afloat sunken wreckage near Pollock Rip.

The Acushnet reported that two vessels were sunk, one of which is supposed to be the six-masted schooner Wyoming. There is no clue to the identity of the other.

From one of the wrecks two masts are protruding above water and from the other three masts. The wrecks are a quarter of a mile apart.

The four-masted schooner Spindrift, loaded with a $35,000 cargo of lumber for Portland from Florida, has been picked up by a coast guard cutter and is being towed to Hampton Roads.

They are due at Hampton Roads tomorrow night. The schooner was launched at Machias less than four years ago.

The crew were rescued after abandoning the craft off Cape Hatteras by the steamer Carrillo.

Schooners Seriously Damaged in Storm

Messages telling of storm damage to coastwise ships plying between Boston and other Atlantic ports continued to reach here today.

With most of her sails blown to tatters, the schooner Augusta G. Hilton, which sailed from Boston March 4 for Jacksonville, is reported as being sighted four miles south of Diamond Shoal, off Cape Hatteras, on Thursday. Her skipper refused assistance.

The schooner G. J. Cherry put into Cape Lookout Cove, N. C., yesterday, leaking badly and with the crew working steadily at the pumps. She is bound from Charleston to Boston.

Of the rum fleet of seven, which dispersed during the height of the hurricane and blizzard, one has returned and was sighted today fifteen miles off Boston Light and ready for business. The Newton Bay, another of the fleet, has put into Yarmouth for fuel and provisions.

CUTTER SEIZES RUM SHIP IN 30-MILE DASH

New York, March 15.—The coast guard cutter Hudson brought into port the seagoing rum Albatross which she had captured as a rumrunner after a thirty-mile chase out to sea. Thirty six-pound shots were fired at the tug by the cutter Gresham. The captain and thirteen members of the Albatross' crew were arrested.

MISSING HALIFAX SHIP SAFE IN PORT

Halifax, N. S., March 15.—The steamer H. W. Hendry, which sailed from this port last Saturday for Bridgeport, Ct., has reached her destination safely after a difficult voyage, said a telegram received here today. She had not been reported since leaving and shipping men feared she had been lost in storms off the coast.

Wales Again Hurt While Riding in Steeplechase

Wokingham, Eng., March 17.—While riding in a steeplechase event today, the Prince of Wales, only recently recovered from a fall from his horse, was thrown at the first fence, falling on his head and hands.

Prince of Wales.

He was removed, bleeding freely from the face, to a farm house, protesting that he was "quite able to walk."

The prince was uncreated earlier in the afternoon, but sustained no injury. Before being assisted he barely avoided a bad mixup by steering clear of three fallen riders.

Prince Henry, in the Earl Beatty race of the same event, also had a fall.

The Duke of York saw the accidents.

INSPECTOR CRONIN DYING AFTER CRASH

Police Inspector Michael Cronin is dying at his home, No. 481 Talbot avenue, Dorchester. He has been ill since he was hurt in an automobile accident recently and early today suffered a relapse and lost consciousness.

With Inspector Harry Pierce, Inspector Cronin was thrown from the auto. Inspector Pierce was soon able to resume work, but Cronin did not rally after an operation.

Inspector Cronin

Inspector Cronin joined the force July 28, 1893. He was formerly an inspector attached to headquarters but preferred "station duty" and for several years has been connected with Station 5, East Dedham street.

Dempsey Pictures Shown Contrary to the Law in Over 20 States, Witness Admits

Washington, March 15.—The existence of a nationwide plot to exhibit the Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures in 1921 in violation of the Federal statutes, was established today by the Senate committee investigating Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty.

It was disclosed by F. C. Quimby, one of the owners of the films, that they were exhibited in more than twenty states, the buyers being supplied with names of lawyers in their respective states who would "see that everything was all right."

In many instances, it was established, exhibitors paid fees of $1,000, and thereafter reaped huge profits.

Quimby said he had "understood" that Jesse W. Smith, boon companion of Attorney-General Daugherty "had an interest" in the film contract.

The profits, Quimby said, amounted to more than $125,000, of which $60,000 to $65,000 went to Smith and his companions.

Gaston B. Means, former agent of the Department of Justice, testified yesterday he had handled between $40,000 and $50,000 for Smith in this connection.

Roxie Stinson on Thursday told the committee Smith had told her "we," meaning himself and Daugherty, had planned to make $100,000 on the films.

Time and time again senatorial questioners sought to establish a direct connection between the Attorney-General himself and the film conspiracy, but Quimby pleaded ignorance of this, his replies at times arousing the ire of his questioners.

FRIENDS OF DAUGHERTY NAMED IN DEMPSEY FIGHT FILM DEAL

WORKINGS OF SCHEME ARE REVEALED BY WITNESS

The most direct reference to Daugherty himself was contained in a report said by Senator Wheeler to have been made by a Department of Justice operative in which the words appeared "Daugherty told Jap Zuma to see Alfred Urion, a lawyer in the Munsey Building," in Washington.

Muma was the New York correspondent of E. B. McLean's Cincinnati Enquirer and Urion was the lawyer who acted for the film owners.

Quimby said he understood that Smith, Muma, Will Orr and Ike Martin had the plan to display the films and that Tex Rickard, the promoter, had told him of the plan.

He said he had been told to go ahead with showing the films and that he would not be bothered by the Department of Justice.

Quimby told of his acquaintance with William Orr and Jap Muma, identified yesterday by Gaston B. Means as part owners of the Carpentier-Dempsey fight film, but said he did not know Jess Smith.

RICKARD CONTRACT

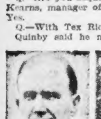
"You took the pictures of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I was the producer."

Q—Are you acquainted with Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey? A—Yes.

Q—With Tex Rickard? A.—Yes. Quimby said he made a contract



Senator Wheeler

Sen. Brookhart

in 1921 with Rickard to produce and sell films of the fight.

Agreement later was made between him and Rickard, the witness said, for display of the films in other states.

Senator Wheeler asked if Quimby knew Attorney General Daugherty. Quimby said he did not.

TOLD OF PLAN

Rickard told him, he said, that Muma, Orr and a man named Ike Martin had told him they had a plan to display the films.

Quimby said he believed there was a written agreement for the shipment of the films outside of New Jersey and that he might have a copy in his office in New York. Checks were paid out, he said, under the agreement for use of films.

Rickard told him, the witness said, that there was a plan "submitted to him whereby the pictures could be sold" outside in violation of the law.

"I believe Mr. Orr used to refer to Jess Smith as a friend of his," said Quimby.

EVERYTHING O. K.

"My understanding was that these pictures could be shown legally and everything would be all right," Quimby said.

The pictures were to be sold to one man in each State and he was to be the distributor.

Quimby was to have nothing to do with transportation or distribution of films, but only to make, sell and deliver them in New Jersey.

Q—Who did you understand Jess Smith was? A.—A friend of Attorney-General Daugherty.

Q—Did you understand Orr was representing Smith's interests? A.—I don't recall whether he ever mentioned that or not.

Q.—Well, how did Smith's name come in? A.—Just that Orr was a friend of Smith's.

Senator Jones asked more details.

"It was just that these men had a plan whereby the fight pictures could be shown legally," Quimby said.

TOLD TO GO AHEAD

"You mean they could be shown and you would not be bothered by the Department of Justice here in Washington?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I was told to go ahead with the picture and I wouldn't be bothered."

"Who told you that?" asked Senator Jones.

"These three gentlemen."

Quimby told of discussions with a local attorney named Urion, who, he understood, was a friend of Attorney-General Daugherty.

Urion as attorney for Orr, Muma and Martin, was to suggest names of lawyers in each State, Quimby said, to act as agents for the distribution. Quimby also said he showed the pictures first before Rickard added soldiers in a Staten Island hospital, in New York State and that he and Tex Rickard were fined and reprimanded by the district attorney.

Senator Wheeler, bringing out the details of the exhibition plan, pointed out that the pictures had to be shown before a "veterans' organization" in each State.

"Then after that exhibition," the Senator said, "the buyer in that State would be hauled up before some justice and fined. That was the arrangement, wasn't it?"

Quimby would not agree to that. The action would be "up to the buyer" of each state right, he asserted.

Pressed by Senator Wheeler, Quimby said he understood a similar plan of receiving films and then showing the pictures was followed in other states.

"How did you get your money?" persisted Senator Wheeler.

"From the buyer."

"Now, didn't you tell me last night the pictures would be shown in each State before some veterans' organization and then the buyer would be arrested?" demanded Senator Wheeler.

BOTH ARRESTED

"I told you my experience in New York," Quimby replied.

He and Tex Rickard had been arrested there for the first showing.

Someone in United States District Attorney Hayward's office in New York told him to "wait a little while" before showing the pictures again. Mr. Hayward, he said, was present but he could not remember who told him to wait.

"Didn't the district attorney's office then tell you to wait a couple of weeks, until public sentiment subsided and then go ahead?" persisted Senator Wheeler.

"They advised me not to go ahead," Quimby said.

"You did know this was the plan followed in each of the other States and that this was done in thirty-six States?"

Quimby said it was his belief this

William J. Burns

Edward B. McLean

was the plan, but there were "only twenty-two or twenty-five States."

Q.—Whenever you sold a picture you told the buyer what lawyer to see in that State? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you knew if he went to that lawyer he would be fined, and then allowed to go ahead? A.—That was my understanding.

TOLD TO "CUT LOOSE"

Q—You were a party to this plan weren't you? A.—I suggested it to the buyers. They followed it.

Senator Ashurst told the witness "no man has anything to fear telling this committee the truth," and Chairman Brookhart adjured him "to out loose."

"My dear man, I told you what the plan was," Quimby said.

"You were a party to this plan?" Senator Jones repeated.

"Yes."

"Did you get any money out of it?" Senator Wheeler resumed.

"Yes."

Q.—You couldn't get that without assuring your buyer he could exhibit. A.—I did get money without that assurance in Michigan.

FEARS DAUGHERTY

"Mr. Quimby, you are afraid the attorney-general will cause you trouble?" Senator Wheeler put in.

"If he can he will cause it now," Quimby replied.

Then the witness conceded he knew into which States the pictures went when he sold them. In Oklahoma and Michigan he had not made the arrangements for arrest and fine.

Q.—So you went through this performance in twenty-two States? A.—Yes.

He was asked to name the States and give the attorney in each one. He said he would "have to look it up."

Muma told him, Quimby said, of the reported exhibition of the pictures at Edward B. McLean's home and that President Harding, the Attorney-General and others were present.

$75,000 IN NEW YORK

While Quimby was on the stand the committee sent for G. O. Holdridge of the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company to come at once to the hearing. He was said to be a former Department of Justice agent.

Quimby said he had charge of the film exhibition in New York State and that the proceeds were about $75,000. After being fined $1,000, he said, he continued to show the films in New York, after about thirty days, and was never interfered with.

Senator Wheeler read a report by a special investigator saying Muma had been advised to see Urion by Attorney-General Daugherty in the picture matter. He denied Muma had told him the Attorney-General had advised him to discuss the matter with Urion.

"Did Muma tell you Urion was a friend of Daugherty?"

"Yes."

"What was Muma to get out of this?"

"The three of them were to get 50 per cent. of the net proceeds."

Senator Wheeler asked if Muma had ever told Quimby that Attorney-General Daugherty had told Muma:

"They ought to get a big cut if they put this thing across."

Quimby said he hadn't.

IN McLEAN'S EMPLOY

"Wasn't this the plan?" Senator Wheeler went on, "that Alfred H. Urion and Muma were to put this across, using great influence with the political parties and press?"

"I don't know," said Quimby.

Senator Wheeler asked for Muma's connection with Edward B. McLean.

"I knew he (Muma) was in McLean employ," Quimby said.

Pressed by Senator Wheeler, Quimby said there was "some connection" between Orr and Jess Smith. He admitted Orr, Muma and Martin had told him Smith had an interest in the contract.

"Orr told me," Quimby said. "I didn't know Smith and never saw him."

"Did he tell you Smith was a friend of the Attorney-General's?" Chairman Brookhart asked.

"I was told so."

GOT HALF

"From what you got, half went to you and half to Muma and Orr and these other fellows?" Quimby was asked.

"Yes."

"You were to get nothing where they couldn't show?" asked Senator Jones.

"Yes."

The receipts of Orr, Muma and Martin, Quimby said, were "around $50,000 or $85,000."

The total net profits including foreign sales were around $125,000, not including New Jersey rights.

Senator Wheeler, reading from reports, named men who paid fines in various cities as announced last night by Attorney-General Daugherty.

BOSTON MAN

"In Boston the man indicted was Theodore Hayes, and he wasn't prosecuted or fined," Senator Wheeler commented.

"Was Muma ever tried?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"Not that I know of."

"You did know that Muma came to Washington and confessed all his sins to Mr. Burns and said he was headed straight for the Atlanta pen?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"No, I didn't know that."

Q.—No injunction was ever gotten out to stop these pictures? A.—Not to my knowledge.

To Muma, by check, Quimby said, he paid $85,000.

"The total receipts in this country outside of New Jersey were then, about $125,000?" Senator Moses asked.

"About that."

"And that was after the legal expenses in each State were paid?"

"Yes."

"What led Muma to tell you he was a close friend of the Attorney-General and Burns?" asked Senator Jones.

"I don't know."

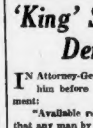
Quimby said he and Rickard had planned originally to show the films only in New Jersey and abroad, but after Muma opened negotiations he was willing to proceed in other States.

Senator Wheeler insisted that a 50 per cent. split to Orr, Muma and Martin was for their "pull" in Washington. Quimby answered only that they assured him they would not be disturbed.

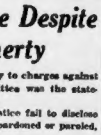
'King' Solomon Is Free Despite Denial by Daugherty

IN Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty's reply to charges against him before the Senate investigating committee was the statement:

"Available records in the Department of Justice fail to disclose that any man by the name of Solomon ever was pardoned or paroled, or, in fact, ever served a sentence in any Federal penitentiary, as was intimated by Mrs. Jess Smith."



Charles Solomon.



Harry M. Daugherty.

Federal court records in Boston show that within the past week Charles Solomon was released from the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta after serving less than fourteen months of a five-year sentence imposed for subornation of perjury, growing out of a narcotic case.

Solomon, known as "King Solomon" and the "Dope Czar," was released on order of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, which body ordered a retrial. He was originally sentenced by Judge Anderson, in Federal court here, in January, 1923.

Upon his release from the penitentiary, Solomon was re-arrested in connection with the $1,500,000 mail robbery in Los Angeles in 1921. He is out on bail awaiting a hearing before United States Commissioner Hayes on March 26.

BARES PLOT TO BLACKMAIL DR. COOK

But the Postal Authorities Stepped in and North Pole "Discoverer" Was Jailed

Washington, March 15.—H. C. Baldwin, a San Antonio, Tex., ranger and also a former Department of Justice agent, was a witness today before the Senate committee probing Attorney-General Daugherty.

Enforcement of liquor laws in Texas, Baldwin continued, "is a joke."

"It was commonly known that Harry Hamilton, the prohibition group head, was selling back captured liquor. I saw him sell three stills he captured to bootleggers and I arrested him.

"I was in my witnesses and United States Attorney Hartman said there was a weighty question involved because Hamilton was Republican."

"Hartman went to see David Walker, United States marshal, brother-in-law of Attorney-General Daugherty, and was finally allowed to make formal complaint against Hamilton, but he was never prosecuted and the case allowed to die, though he resigned.

POLITICAL MATTER.

"Mr. Hartman admitted to me it was a political matter with him," Baldwin observed, "and not a law matter. He and Hamilton got their appointments from the same source."

William Hanson, Baldwin said, "told me he was a special friend of Senator Fall," and was later appointed to the immigration service at El Paso.

"Do you think Mr. Hanson has been continuing his activities as to arms running since he became an official of the immigration service?" Senator Jones asked.

"From what I hear he is," Baldwin said. "Within the last twenty days I've heard about some rifle shipments."

In a talk with District Attorney Zweifel and Joseph Kingsbury in 1922, Baldwin said, he was asked to investigate oil stock promoters and came to the conclusion that they did not intend to prosecute, but expected to get some money from the promoters.

BLACKMAIL DR. COOK

Baldwin said it was the purpose of the Dallas district attorney, "in my opinion, to blackmail Dr. Frederick A. Cook and other oil company promoters, who have since been tried.

"But the postal authorities after showing a good deal of feeling," Baldwin continued, "insisted on having a special attorney to prosecute."

"Do you know of any money passing corruptly to Federal officials in connection with these oil cases?" asked Mr. Howland, attorney for the Attorney-General.

"I do not," Baldwin said.

"Or in connection with the gun running?" asked Senator Moses.

"No."

There were many cases of arms shipments on the Mexican border during the revolution of Esteban Cantu, Governor of Lower California, Baldwin testified.

Baldwin said he referred to the Department of Justice a report that "Hanson had been to Washington to make arrangements with certain high officials whereby Washington would sanction a revolution if the right people were behind it."

Baldwin was transferred, in May, 1921, from Del Rio to Dallas, he said, and no one was assigned to his place by the Department of Justice. That left about 200 miles of border open, as far as the Department of Justice was concerned.

G. F. REDMOND'S 'MR. S.' IS NAMED

Sheridan was on the payroll of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., at a salary of $1,000 a week. At least two other members of the Sheridan family were also on the Redmond payroll at large salaries.

That Sheridan was the guiding genius of the Redmond concern has been stated openly by those familiar with Boston's latest financial bubble.

In 1914, and for about five years prior thereto, Sheridan conducted a banking and brokerage business under the name of A. M. Sheridan & Company, Inc., with offices in the Security Building, Chicago, Illinois. He purported to sell investment securities, stocks and bonds. His specialty was mining and oil stocks.

A letter sent out by Sheridan in those days carried the boast that his "prefarred list" of clients totaled a hundred thousand names, and was a prolific letter writer and is said to have written the literature used by a notorious New York firm of "get rich quick" schemers.

QUIT CHICAGO

In 1914 Sheridan promoted about two dozen concerns, using reputable citizens as officials. Some few of the enterprises had a certain value, but the majority of them were worthless and never paid dividends. One of these companies was the Minor H. A. Producing Company. The company went to the wall without paying a single cent in dividends.

Other enterprises in which thousands of small investors lost their savings were the Colorado Bluebell Mining Company; the Gold Reminer Mining Company; Miner Heir Vannage Mining Company, Saskatchewan Gold Dredging Company and the Miner Heir Sunrise Company. With the adoption of the Illinois Blue Sky Laws, Sheridan was forced to move his headquarters to Kentucky.

Sheridan sent out letters usually to small investors promising a 40 per cent. dividend.

In May, 1918, United States Attorney Frank Clyne, acting on numerous complaints that Sheridan was violating the Blue Sky Laws, ordered Assistant District Attorney General Raymond S. Pruitt to look into the activities of Sheridan and his associates. As a specific charge was based on an oil transaction conducted by the mails from a point outside the State of Illinois, the Assistant Attorney-General found he had no grounds to prosecute under the Blue Sky Laws.

Just when Mr. Sheridan first arrived in Boston is not clear, but the sudden rise of G. F. Redmond from a bus boy in a one-arm lunch room to head of a firm doing a business that ran into millions annually was coincident with Mr. Sheridan's arrival in Boston.

Mr. Sheridan lives at No. 100 Abbotsford road, Brookline. The telephone is listed in his wife's name, Lucy Sheridan.

A new phase of the investigation which is interesting authorities is that where a customer purchased through partial payment houses some stock that was later assessed the partial payment house charged the assessment against the customer's trading balance or collected the amount in cash.

This would have been perfectly legitimate business had the stock ever been bought for the customer, but records of the companies failed to show that the brokerage houses turned in these assessments.

This adds another profitable item to the long list through which "John Brown," the customer, was separated from his bank roll.

"John Brown" is first charged a commission for the purchase of stock that was never bought; he is charged interest on the unpaid balance of a loan that was never made and when the stock was assessed he is given an additional dig.

REDMOND AID IS DENIED BY BRICKLEY

Ex-Football Star Says Use of Name Absolutely Unauthorized

Charles E. Brickley, former Harvard football star, admitted to the American that "friendly tips" were given by him on Goldfield stocks to friends. He denied, however, that he was an employe of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., or aided the concern in any way in connection with Goldfield or other stocks.

"None of the people I told to buy Goldfield stock ever bought it ough the house of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc.," he declared. "They bought through stock exchange houses and paid cash for their stock certificates. The great majority of my friends made money following my advice."

Brickley, now in business with his father as Charles E. Brickley & Co., of New York, cordage dealers, insisted that Goldfield stocks are good stocks, especially Goldfield Florence.

"It's a matter of fact," he said. "Goldfield Florence has always been a good stock, and that is the Goldfield I have had most to do with. I never touched Goldfield Deep to amount to anything, but even Goldfield Deep has been on the curb market for two or three years. Goldfield Florence has been listed on the curb for fourteen or fifteen years and has been sold as high as $5. Both Goldfields started very low.

"I know Redmond personally, and so far as my relations were concerned with him, they were all right. I knew that Redmond himself had used connection with those stocks.

"I know who Mr. 'S' is. But he never had anything to do with me in any way, shape or manner. I don't remember seeing him more than twice in my life, but I know who he is.

"I pushed out no glowing reports on Goldfield. I did send telegrams to friends, as I would tip any friend, I realized nothing out of these tips.

"The only possible connection I could have had with G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., was through an account I had in his office some time ago. But I lost money with them and quit. That doesn't indicate any close connection with him.

"I never sold a share of Goldfield stock to anybody and if G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., sold stock in my name, they did it without authority. If I was an aid to G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., I was an aid unconsciously."

Harding and Hughes Saw Fight Films at McLean's

Washington, March 15 (I.N.S.)—Secretary of State Hughes, who was named by Gaston B. Means as being one of the audience with the late President Harding and other government officials, who viewed the Dempsey-Carpentier fight films in Washington at the home of E. B. McLean, said today he had not known the pictures were to be shown when he went to the McLean dinner.

He was unaware, he said, of the legal aspects of the matter.

The films were brought into the District of Columbia in violation of the Federal statute.

VANISHING BOSTON BRIDE FOUND AND IS SPURNED BY HUSBAND

RICH MATE DECLARES 'I'M DONE'

Young Rojas Adds That He Plans Seeking a Divorce From Pianist Wife

Mertis Childs Rojas, missing bride of Harry A. Rojas, wealthy South American student in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, has been found.

The pretty pianist, who gave up a place in a Derby, Conn., theatre on March 1 to join her youthful husband but who became lost on the way, is said to be installed in a furnished room not far from the home of her cousin, Morgan Childs, at No. 418 Massachusetts avenue.

So far as her husband is concerned, he says, she can stay there. "I'm done," young Rojas tells the Boston American, "and my next step will be the institution of divorce proceedings. Mertis is a nice girl, and pretty, and lively, but she has played the music for too many of these film mysteries and intrigues, and they've got into her blood."

CALLS ON FRIEND.

At the home of Morgan Childs, stout denial was made that she has been living there but one of Mr. Rojas' former Boston friends, who resides not far distant on Columbus avenue, is authority for the report that Mrs. Rojas has called upon her within the last twenty-four hours.

It was Morgan Childs who, one week ago, informed the Boston American that he had been called to the South Station by his cousin and had given her $100 and a ticket to Baltimore, Md., where, he said she told him, the runaway bride had taken a position as cashier in a restaurant.

Mrs. Rojas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Childs, of No. 44 Greenbrier street, Dorchester.

"Her father called last night at the Morgan Childs place on Massachusetts avenue, Henry Rojas said, and then came to see me. I was given to understand that Mertis has had quite enough of this mystery business and is prepared to come back and resume her wifely duties—but not for me!

REJECTS OVERTURES.

"I prefer the quiet life. I mean to be a physician. This sort of thing may be good advertising for persons in the movies, but it is not calculated, in my opinion, to advance the fortunes or improve the standing of a doctor of medicine."

They have been married about fourteen or fifteen months, Rojas says, and in that time have run up and left him no fewer than six times.

Everybody concerned appears to be agreed that Mertis is not in Baltimore and that she is within a few blocks of the home of her student husband, at No. 55 Rutland square.

But Rojas insists that he isn't interested.

READY TO FIGHT 2 MEN! HIS WIFE, NEVER

Worcester, March 15.—Any two men in the world will Henry Sundeen take on in battle rather than take on his wife.

Sundeen said so himself—emphatically—in court today before a charge of assault and battery brought against him by Mrs. Myrtle Sundeen was dismissed.

Mrs. Sundeen said her husband kicked her, chased her through the house and hit her on the head with a club.

Sundeen said he was awakened by "a diver slap in the face" administered by his wife who then threatened to kill him by slow poison.

"I'd rather fight any two men in the world than my wife," declared the husband. "She's a wild battler."

WHITINSVILLE WRECK QUERY UNDER WAY

Railroad Officials Start Investigation; Official Inquiry on Monday

Whitinsville, March 15.—Five of the ten injured passengers brought here from the train wreck on the New Haven Railroad, two miles from here, left the hospital today.

Of the rest, Elwood Walling, the baggagemaster, of Harrisville, R. I., and John H. Mongeau of Pawtucket, R. I., were reported in a serious condition.

Walling suffered internal injuries and Mongeau a probable fracture of the skull.

The three others still in the hospital are Howard H. Hawes, Providence Journal reporter, lacerations and shock; William A. Boucher, Pawtucket, R. I., bruises and left wrist cut, and Henry Dunstall, Fairhaven, broken collar bone and fractured ribs.

The track was cleared for traffic early today.

The accident occurred as a passenger train, southbound, was rounding a curve, the two rear cars leaving the rails and overturning. An investigation by railroad officials is under way.

An official investigation will be held in Providence Monday, according to Inspector John H. Parent of the Department of Public Utilities who examined the wreck and said he was unable to find any evidence of defective equipment.

James J. Hill, superintendent of inspection of cars for the New Haven, said that the combined baggage and smoking car was inspected and found in perfect condition before it left here.

Mrs. Joseph Galipeau, whose home is beside the railroad tracks at this point, heard the crash and summoned doctors, nurses and the police by telephone.

She helped bathe the wounds of the injured with Miss Marguerite McGaw, a nurse, who was aboard the wrecked train, and then turned her home into a temporary hospital.

HELD IN ROBBERY OF LANDLADY

William Spring, alias Thomas Lynch, nineteen, was brought back to Boston from New York today, charged with attacking his former landlady, Mrs. Anna Hendricks, an sixty, of No. 23 Dartmouth street South End, and robbing her of $175.

Spring, a former sailor, was arrested in New York by Special Officer O'Neil of the East Dedham street station. Arrest of the second man alleged to have been implicated in the assault and robbery is expected shortly.

The explosion stunned six physicians and four nurses in the operating room. Dr. H. Warren Buckler, by whom the anaesthetic was being administered, was scorched slightly on one side of the face and his hair was singed.

BANKER FINED FOR ATTACKING FARMHANDS

Leicester Man Is Accused of Halting Neighbors at the Point of Shotgun

Worcester, March 15.—A battle between S. Gleason Warren, president of the Leicester Savings Bank, and employes of the Sibley Farms in Spencer, fought on the snow-covered Warren Farm, was revealed today in Worcester court where Warren appeared, charged with disturbing the peace.

During the battle for right of way through the Warren farm at Leicester, the bank president was alleged to have used his fists, and these failing, to have brought a shotgun out of his farmhouse.

He was fined $10, but appealed.

The battle occurred last Wednesday when Supt. Joseph Hadley and Merton Parker and George Wiley of the Sibley Farms found their progress blocked by a huge snowdrift in the road while on the way to Worcester to deliver milk.

The only way to pass the drift was to go through Warren's cornfield.

The Sibley men were making the detour when Warren, who is sixty-one, appeared, seized the horses and attempted to turn them into the drift, it was testified. When the men objected Warren is alleged to have punched Foreman Parker in the face, then seized a shovel and struck one of the other men.

Next, according to testimony, he rushed back to the house, obtained a shotgun and threatened to shoot.

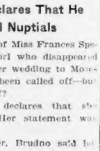
GIRL'S WEDDING OFF! WHO SAID FATAL WORD?

"I Did!" Says Girl, but Ex-Fiance Declares That He Halted Nuptials

The marriage of Miss Frances Spevak, Roxbury girl who disappeared on the eve of her wedding to Mose G. Brudno, has been called off—but who called it off?

Miss Spevak declares that she called it off. Her statement was made yesterday.

Today, however, Brudno said he and not Miss Spevak, had blocked the intended wedding. In his statement he asserts that his former fiancee, who vanished from her home at No. 11 Nazing street, Roxbury, and was gone for two weeks before being found in New York, gave back the engagement ring on his demand.



Miss Spevak

Brudno's statement follows:

"I quite agree with the statement issued to the press by Miss Spevak that 'there never will be a wedding.'

"After investigation I learned that Miss Spevak had gone to New York city and had registered at the Martha Washington under the name of Gertrude F. Simmons. I demanded an explanation of the entire episode and received no satisfactory answer.

"I informed the young lady, after waiting several days to hear from her, that our engagement to marry was off and made demand for the engagement ring, which I received yesterday, and upon receipt of which I returned the gifts received from her.

"I have not yet learned the real story concerning Miss Spevak's sudden disappearance. I know it was not because of her lack of love for me."

KIN OF STEVENSON DEPORTED BY U. S.

New York, March 15.—Robert Wilson Stevenson, second cousin of Robert Louis Stevenson, was deported to Scotland today in the steerage of the Cunard-Anchor liner Assyria. He had spent fifteen months in California, during which time he failed to find the good health and success he sought in this country.

Until a few minutes before he was taken to the vessel, Mr. Stevenson was in the Ellis Island Hospital.

GETS YEAR FOR KISSING WIFE OF FRIEND

Roxbury Woman Declares Her Husband Tried to "Frame Her" for Divorce Suit

Robert Cauley can meditate for the next twelve months on the folly of kissing another man's wife for the purpose of giving the husband evidence for a divorce.

In Superior Criminal Court Judge Flynn today sent Cauley to the House of Correction for a year on the technical charge of assault and battery. Mrs. Ralph Phillips of No. 8 Rockland place, Roxbury, was the accuser.

Mrs. Phillips.

Cauley and Ralph Phillips were friendly. Cauley was invited to spend several days at the Phillips home and accepted the invitation.

When Phillips returned from work at an unusual hour one morning in time to see Cauley embrace and kiss his wife, he at once started divorce action.

Mrs. Phillips convinced a jury that she had been "framed" by her husband and Cauley. The husband, in the meantime, has disappeared.

The woman's body, head nearly severed, was found in the trunk which was being transferred in Ogden from a Union Pacific to a Southern Pacific train. The trunk, consigned to Weed, Cal., had been shipped from this city. A baggageman noticed blood on the hinges and called the police.

BOY OF 4 BLINDED BY NEGLECT

Mother, Arrested, Shrieks as Child Is Taken From Her in Court

Lawrence, March 15.—While Mrs. Anna Kustos of North Andover shrieked hysterically in District Court, little four-year-old Johnny Kustos was taken from her arms by court officers and turned over to State authorities.

Mrs. Kustos' neglect of her child, it is charged, has made him blind. She was arrested and released today for further hearing April 17, but the boy, Judge Chamberlin decided, is better off in the care of the Department of Public Welfare.

Johnny is technically under arrest, charged with being a neglected child. Unable to understand the action of the court, the mother wept violently until led away by spectators.

The boy was cut in the eye while he and his seven-year-old brother, Arthur, were playing Indians with a table knife. His mother took him to Dr. E. P. Fuller of Lawrence, who told her to go to a hospital for expert treatment.

Mrs. Kustos instead went home and Johnny soon became blind in the injured eye, while the other eye began to fail as well. Hearing of this, Dr. Fuller and the Lawrence City Mission obtained a warrant for the mother's arrest.

has achieved considerable success as a commercial artist for several Boston department stores. She is a graduate of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts School. The couple will make their home in Philadelphia.

ROBS MAN IN BLACK MARIA; HELD FOR JURY

Police overlooked a bet when they searched Wilbur Smith, colored, for a diamond ring he was accused of stealing from John J. Shanahan while both men were being taken to a city prison in the "Black Maria." Shanahan, who had been arrested for being drunk, claimed the colored man took the ring, worth $100, from his finger while he dozed. The policeman stripped Smith and went over his clothing. The first garment they examined was a four-in-hand tie, with the knot permanently tied. Several times they examined the tie, but finally gave up search for the ring. Smith's conscience bothered him, however, and in the end he told the police to open the permanent knot in the tie. There the ring was found. Smith was held under $1,500 bail for the Grand Jury. Shanahan was discharged on the drunkenness charge.

DIE IN ALMHOUSE, NOW DIVIDENDS COME

Springfield, March 15.—Declaration of substantial dividends by the defunct Pynchon National Bank, which failed in 1901, today brought to light that Humphrey and Alden Grout, brothers, and former greenhouse owners, who were ruined by the bank failure, have both died in the city almshouse.

Humphrey's death occurred several years ago, but Alden died only two weeks ago, too soon to benefit by the money due him. The brothers were saved from burial in the Potters' Field by the ownership of a cemetery lot, their sole possession.

SAYS DRY FUND USED AS GIFT TO ANDERSON

New York, March 15.—Dr. Sumner L. Hamilton, who has been dismissed as superintendent of the Municipal Lodging House, in the Manhattan district of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, today declared that salaries had been kept from employes of the home, in some cases for three months, because the funds subscribed for "prohibition work" were converted into a gift to William H. Anderson, former State superintendent, the gift not to cost more than $7,500.

The cause given officially for Dr. Hamilton's discharge was hostility to the policies of the league, which he denied. Rev. W. H. Margin of Buffalo succeeds him.

COMPLETE DEFEAT FOR STILLMAN

Court Rules He Can't Get Divorce; Baby Guy Legitimate Child

New York, March 15 (U.S.).—Somewhere in New York today, shielded from an inquisitive world, Anne Urquhart Stillman is a very happy woman. No doubt she is trying to gather up the chewed-off threads of her life to weave into a bright new fabric clean of stains.

For Anne Stillman has just won one of the most sensational and long-drawn-out divorce cases in the history of society here. The appellate division of the Supreme Court has handed down an opinion unanimously confirming a former decree in her favor.

That means that James A. Stillman, former president of the National City Bank, does not get his divorce. It means, too, that Baby Guy, Anne Stillman's youngest child, is considered legitimate and entitled to his share of his father's and grandfather's millions.

But most of all, it means a new life opening out to the woman whose name has been a target for public curiosity, surmise, and scorn for three years.

The case has been strikingly interesting to the scandal-loving since it came to the courts almost three years ago after the original divorce papers had been filed eight months previous.

From that time until now, Mrs. Stillman has been heralded as a betrayer of her wedding vows, the sweetheart of Fred Beauvais, French-Indian guide on her Canadian estate, and the mother of his child.

While he was blackening her character, Mrs. Stillman brought out things about her husband that have not been denied, things remarkably similar to the charges made against her.

She claimed that Stillman had not been satisfied with a legal wife and had Flo Leeds, a former show girl, had borne him three children.

Ten gallons of whiskey were found in the truck.

FINE RECORD BY DEACONESS HOSPITAL

Marvelous Cures Are Made at Institution Which Has Enjoyed Rapid Growth

This is the nineteenth of a series of articles which is a sequel to this newspaper's investigation of medical quackery in Greater Boston.

If you are not acquainted with reputable physicians and wish to make sure of obtaining expert advice and fair dealing, the series will show you how to avoid quacks by patronizing Boston's health centers, the best in the country.

Public confidence inspired the growth of the Deaconess Hospital, at No. 15 Deaconess road, Boston, from an institution of fourteen to 200 beds.

From the beginning, its high medical standards and treatment of special diseases has been commended throughout the country. Only accredited physicians serve on its staff, and with such an institution at the disposal of Boston and New England it is almost incredible that any one would resort to quacks.

Because of its unlimited facilities for special diagnostic work and treatment, patients are brought to the Deaconess from hospitals in other cities. Last year there were patients from thirty-one States registered there, and 407 doctors from thirty-eight States, and ten foreign countries visited the institution for diabetic observation alone.

MANY CLINICS HELD.

General medical and surgical cases for men, women and children of both sexes, without age limit, are cared for; but the hospital specializes to a greater extent in diabetic and goitre diseases.

Diabetic and goitre clinics are held jointly in the Out-Patient Department four times weekly; Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 9:00 a. m. This is the only out-patient clinic held. All other diseases are treated in wards.

The new hospital building is splendidly equipped with pathological, chemical, medical, surgical, metabolism, X-ray, metabolism and electrocardiograph laboratories.

The electrocardiograph machine is a new device for photographing the action of the heart. It is a delicate and expensive instrument and there are only four others in the city of Boston.

This machine marks marvelous progress in the field of medicine as it often enables the physician to discover affection of the heart, otherwise undeterminable, that would make surgical operations dangerous.

UNUSUAL RECORD.

The machine used for making metabolism tests is another long stride forward in medicine. Metabolism tests are made especially in connection with diabetes at this hospital. Basal metabolism, briefly, is the total heat production of the body when at complete rest.

The machine determines whether the metabolism is above or below normal, according to the disease. In diseases of the thyroid gland, for example, treatment is guided by the finding of the machine before and after the operation. And it also determines whether the patient has been cured.

Of 534 operations for thyroid gland diseases last year, there were only three deaths, a most unusual record, as this is a very serious operation.

Of all operations during 1923—and there were 816 major and 739 minor operations—a mortality of only 1.3-10 per cent. resulted. It is believed that only many hospitals can exceed this record.

It was stated at the hospital that the type of patient has changed during recent years, and that patients now are in average of nearly ten years younger than formerly.

The Deaconess Hospital is also making intensive studies on blood pressure.

Ward rates at this institution are from $3.50 to $4.50 a day. Part-pay patients are also received, and an enormous amount of free work has always been carried on here, irregardless of creed or color. The institution is operated under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church and is maintained exclusively by private donations and ward fees.

It is here that the wedding of their son, Phineas Shaw Sprague and Miss Lucy Carnegie takes place today. The Island is owned by the bride's parents and their's is the only family on it.

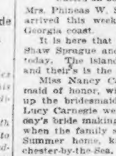
Miss Nancy Carnegie will attend her sister as maid of honor, with eight other attendants making up the bridesmaids group. Both Miss Nancy and Lucy Carnegie were presented to Boston society, today's bride making her bow a year ago this Winter, when the family spent the season in Boston. Their Summer home, known as "Seawold," is at Manchester-by-the-Sea.

A goodly contingent from Boston has gone South for the ceremony, which will be solemnized in the lovely gardens of the Carnegie estate.

After an extensive wedding journey abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Shaw will make their home in Boston.

CERTAIN to be one of the jolliest events of the season is the costume ball taking place on March 28 at the Hotel Somerset.

Under the inspiration of such well-known matrons as Mesdames Archibald Blanchard, Charles T. Lovering, Jr., Herbert Jaques, Jr., William S. Patten, Richard S. Russell and Hendricks H. Whitman, final arrangements are being made for the affair, which is an annual one.



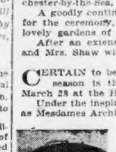
Mrs. Herbert Jaques, Jr.

Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson of Marlboro street, who is also included in the committee for the dance, is making a five weeks' sojourn in California.

ONE hears with interest that Mr. and Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton will be able to move into their new home in the not too distant future.

It was two years ago that "Pride's Hill," their magnificent place at Pride's, was burned to the ground. Since that time the Haughtons have spent much of their time abroad.

Construction work will begin immediately on the new home, which will occupy the site of the old one.



Mrs. W. S. Patten

THE first opportunity for undergraduates to see "Who's Who," the Hasty Pudding play, will be on April 10 at the Hasty Pudding Theatre. The first public performance of the show will be given in Boston on April 24.

"Who's Who" will also be presented in New York, Washington and Hot Springs, Va.

BATTLES WITH DEATH AS FRIENDS SLEEP

While his friends slept soundly only a few yards away Walter Lindquist, a deckhand on the tugboat Confidence, tied up at the Boston Towboat Company dock on Border street, East Boston, battled for his life in the icy waters of the harbor early today.

Only the fact that Joseph Wellings was finally awakened by the shouts of Lindquist saved the deckhand from a watery grave.

Lindquist had the night off. About 2 a. m. he returned to the tug. As he was walking across the gangplank he tripped and plunged headlong into the water. Shouting loudly for help, Lindquist grasped frantically at the small chunks of ice floating around him.

BUILDING UNIONS IN WAGE AGREEMENT

Springfield, March 15.—The first two-year wage agreement in the history of organized labor has been signed between the building contractors and unions, it was made known here today, on the basis of an average wage of $1.12½ an hour. Bricklayers and plasterers are to receive $1.25 an hour, the rate recently in effect. Agreements are still pending between the contractors and the carpenters and one or two other crafts.

But once more, don't gamble. Back of exchange movements there are influences so great that no one can tell what will happen either way. A STATE legislator introduces a bill to punish parents of wayward children, hoping to make parents pay more attention to their children's conduct.

That is upsetting the old Bible teaching with a vengeance. visiting sins of the children upon the fathers and mothers. It isn't likely that it will become law.

MUCH MORE valuable than punishing parents for children's misdeeds would be clinics in every important locality to treat children for gland disease or "disturbance." A good mind goes with good endocrines. That's the modern scientific statement. TRUE treatment for gland trouble in childhood would have kept 60 per cent. of all prisoners out of prison.

A LEARNED Australian says a worldwide prohibition is coming. It causes such great economies, such deposits in savings banks, such tremendous prosperity that all the world—this Australian says—will have to prohibit IF the thing succeeds in the United States.

Judging by the current news, that's a considerable IF.

ADMITS GRAFT IN REVENUE SERVICE

Blair Says He Had Own Secret Service Men Trailing Guilty Employes

Washington, March 15 (I.N.S.).—The third arena was added today to the Senate's three ring scandal circus when the new Watson Committee met and made up its list of subpoenas for persons who will begin Monday to testify to graft, bribery and corruption in the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The list of witnesses was furnished largely by Senator Couzens, (R) of Michigan, whose resolution resulted in the Senate's order for an inquiry. The persons Senator Couzens is calling are expected to tell first what they know about alleged corruption in the matter of refunds on "over assessments" in income taxes.

To the surprise of the committee, Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair informed it that he was well aware of graft among his 19,000 employes that he had a secret service of sixty men on their trail, with the result that much has been exposed and its perpetrators punished.

This force is too small to cope with the situation, Blair told the committee.

"There is bound to be graft in a department as large as ours," he said. "I am eager for the committee to do all it can to stop this graft. Not only are we handicapped in this branch, but in all others."

When, if at all, the committee will turn its attention to the Prohibition Enforcement office of the bureau is yet to be decided. Blair told the committee he did not know of that department having made an investigation of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, as was charged in testimony before the Daugherty investigation.

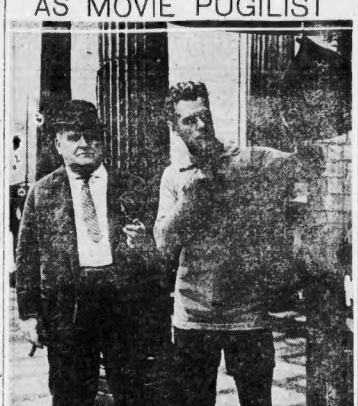
TRAINING FOR ROLE AS MOVIE PUGILIST



OSCAR SHAW IN "THE GREAT WHITE WAY."

"The Great White Way," the Cosmopolitan Corporation's big motion picture, now at the Park Theatre, has evoked an interest among patrons of the silent drama unparalleled in the history of photoplay presentation. The new photoplay presents attractive unusual interest in the world of sports. Many celebrities play actual parts in the film itself, which is woven around the turf, the prize ring, the theatre and Broadway.

One of the big features is a real-size prize fight in which Pete Hartley, well known professional lightweight, battles Oscar Shaw, leading man of the picture. This scene includes such leaders in fight circles as Tex Rickard, who appears as promoter; Joe Humphries, announcer; Johnny Gallagher, referee, and Jimmy Quigley, timekeeper.

Others who appear around the ring or in the training quarters at Madison Square Garden are Irvin S. Cobb, Damon Runyon, "Bugs" Baer, "Kid" Broad and Tammany Young.

CHELSEA FIRM BARRED OUT BY CURLEY

Revokes Wrecking Concern's Permit After Death and Injury on School St. Building

Mayor James M. Curley today personally revoked the permit of the New England Contracting Company of Chelsea, engaged in wrecking the Five Cents Savings Bank building on School street, and barred the concern from further work in the city as long as he is chief executive.

His action followed the death of one man and the injury of another within a few days.

He ordered Building Commissioner John H. Mahony to halt work at the building as soon as he learned of the injury today to John T. Theodore of No. 25 Brooks park, Medford, who was struck by a shower of bricks and debris.

Theodore was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital. His injuries are chiefly about the lower part of his legs. He would have been injured more seriously but for the timely warning of passers-by.

The death of John Sippy of Chelsea, a workman, who fell to the ground when a loose coping gave way, caused the temporary cessation of work last week, but later the company was permitted to resume work. A dangerous coping was ordered removed.

Word of the accident today reached the mayor quickly because the old bank building is nearly opposite City Hall at the corner of Province street. The building is being demolished because of the widening of Province street.

FORBES' Views on FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

President Coolidge remains unmoved amidst all the clash and clatter at Washington. He is both serene in mind and fit in body. An old friend of the Coolidge family, visiting the White House this week, found the President calm, confident, unworried. When he remarked to Mrs. Coolidge how well the President looked and how tranquil he seemed to be, she observed: "His background has fitted him for his job."

She implied that the strength and imperturbability of the hills of Vermont and the religious peace and faith of the parental home had saturated every fibre of Calvin Coolidge and fortified him against being overawed or swept away by passing events. Reassuring, is it not?

Here's a Ford anecdote which I give exactly as I got it this week from a visitor to Detroit:

Ford was asked whether he favored the new subway plan for Detroit.

He asked how long it would take them to build it.

They said about ten years.

He said "I am for it."

They asked him why he gave his reason as it would add weight to the decision.

He said "In ten years every man in Detroit will own a Ford and it will make a wonderful parking place for the cars."

Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical National Bank, sends this postcard from Europe:

"What a lot we, who live in the United States, have to be thankful for."

Isn't it too bad that a lot of windy people in America don't realize this?

If you have in mind buying a low or medium-priced automobile this Spring, don't wait until the last moment, lest you find dealers have a long string of names ahead of yours on their list. Many were disappointed last Spring. History may repeat itself. If cars follow the trend of wages and materials, prices are more likely to be marked up than down.

The placing of the Southern Railway Company's common stock on dividend paying basis is but a forerunner of many encouraging developments which will come to fruition in the South during the next ten years.

One war threw the South flatly upon its back. Another war helped greatly to put the South on its feet.

Well, Congress has stung us again. We have been kept hoping and hoping that we would not have to pay war-time taxes on March 15, 1924, five years and six months after hostilities ceased. Had the politicians been half as eager to serve the public as they have been to play their own little, pettifogging, self-seeking game, we would have been granted the 25 per cent. relief urged by President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and every other clearthinking citizen at Washington and elsewhere.

If business withstands all that has been going on at Washington, no thanks will be due the scheming political gerrymanderers.

BRAVES OPEN THEIR SPRING SERIES WITH THE SENATORS

FELIX WILL GO UNDER KNIFE

BY NICK FLATLEY

Tampa, Fla., March 15.—The Braves opened their well known Spring series with the Senators here today, and seemed to have an even chance going into the fray, as the American Leaguers have been working out just about as long as the Bancrofts.

And they have had practically the same kind of weather. From now on our Braves have at least two games a week, and will be ready enough for real conflict when the season arrives, even though their preliminary weeks have been hurt by cold weather.

Gus Felix

The loss of Gus Felix, who, according to the doctors, must be operated on for appendicitis, will be felt by the club, but nobody is moaning much. David Bancroft and President Mathewson are optimistic. Both have been in the game and know that crying over injuries and things is foolish as well as useless. "Felix was a good looking man out in left," Matty put it, "but we have plenty of outfielders. And besides, he'll be on the shelf only for a short while, even if there is an operation."

This sudden sickness is a blow just the same, this was sort of a holdout this Spring, even though last year was his first in the big show and he didn't set the world on fire. He was finally talked into signing his contract by Judge Fuchs, who promised him a substantial raise if he delivered.

Tim McNamara

That little promise made Felix hustle as much as anyone on the ball club. He admitted that he didn't think he had any competition for a regular job and was busily engaged proving it.

Confidence akin to conceit, is an essential in young players breaking into big game, and Gus had plenty of it. He was hitting the ball as hard as any member of the squad when forced to turn his attention from baseball to doctors.

For today's conflict, Bill Cunningham, Sperber, and Casey Stengel were listed to do the fly chasing.

FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT AT ARENA HOCKEY GAME

Rioting, in which spectators, players, referee and policemen were involved from time to time, characterized the bitterly contested hockey game at the Boston Arena in which the Victorias of Montreal defeated the Eagles of Boston College, 6-1.

Missiles were thrown from the stands at Referee Scott of Montreal, whose strict enforcement of the rules left but one of the five Boston College men on the ice at the close of the second period.

The demonstration over what some in the crowd thought to be unfair treatment of the collegians was general, but at no time spread to the section reserved for Boston College students. These young men, under the skilful handling of their cheer leaders, maintained order.

Trouble began with fist fights in the stands, between supporters of one team and the other. The fighting spirit spread to the ice, where the Canadians resorted to rough tactics, which were promptly copied by the college men.

When Mullowney of Boston College protested against a penalty imposed by Referee Scott, protest so vigorous that he was escorted from the ice.

Flanagan and Mahoney were ordered off soon afterward, and finally one of the Slaters, Mallinson and Culhane.

War was continued off the ice, and spectators and police, as well as players, were mixed up in the melee which took place in the penalty box.

STUDENTS BLAMELESS.

The Boston College students were in no way to blame for the outburst, as the cheer leaders supervised any demonstration from the section allotted them. The students did not leave the stands.

Part of the crowd surged onto the ice, and it was several minutes before things quieted down and play was resumed. The interest in the game, which was a cross between hockey and football, with a few rounds of the fistic sport thrown in for excitement, was not altogether lost.

Rickard Announces Gibson-Dempsey Fight Is Off

New York, March 15 (Universal).—Tex Rickard announces that the return bout between Jack Dempsey and Gibbons, scheduled to take place here, early in June, under his promotion, has been declared off.

Tex made this announcement after an hour's conference with Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, at Madison Square Garden.

Kearns, according to Rickard, declared that Dempsey's moving picture work this Summer will keep him so busy that he will be unable to engage in more than one battle in defence of the world's heavyweight title.

HARVARD CREWS GET OUT ON CHARLES

The Harvard rowing season officially opened when every crew, there were six of them, braved the freezing winds that swept over the Charles and launched the shells for the first trial since the end of practice last Fall. Stray bits of ice, some almost icebergs, fail to daunt the oarsmen.

There was plenty of open water, Newell boathouse was one of the few stretches along the river which was really closed, but all the water above and below was open to navigation.

Considerable difficulty was experienced to get the "ark," the big barge which seats ten men on a side, to float.

TWIN BILL FOR HOCKEY FANS AT ARENA

An old hockey feud will be revived at the Arena tonight when the Victorias of Montreal will play the B. A. A. in one game of the doubleheader. In the other game the Boston Hockey Club will play the Maples.

Jerry Geran

Years ago games between the Unicorn and the Vics were the outstanding features of the local seasons.

In those days the Vics had the great Russell Bowie in center ice. He was the best amateur hockey player ever developed in Canada, who refused to turn pro.

One game between these rivals years ago was particularly bitter and Forrest Osgood, of the B. A. A., was carried off the ice.

The Unicorn team is noted for its hockey intelligence but the Vics with Boo Anderson, Flin Flanagan and Sig Slater in the forward line will match the local in smart hockey.

The Vics have a bunch of good scorers. It looks like a tough night for Ag Smith, Irv Small and Franchie La Croix.

Amber Cronin

The other game between the Maples and the Boston Hockey Club should prove a thriller. It's the last game for both teams and each will put forth every effort to win.

VETERAN PLAYERS GIVE PRAISE TO HERMAN

By FRED C. LANE

San Antonio, Tex., March 15.—"Say Bill, watch that kid hit. Do you know that there's the making of a big league player in that fellow. He sure takes a healthy cut at that ball, which is half the battle of a successful batter, if my way of thinking isn't wrong."

Babe Herman

Bill Wamby and Joe Harris sat on the bench and waited their turn for batting practice. The rookies were up taking their cuts and consequently came under the watchful eye of Joe and Bill.

"You know," went on Joe, "Baby Herman reminds me of Babe Ruth a lot when he first came to Boston. A long, rangy kid who hadn't quite filled out, but who showed an inclination to amount to something worth while."

Joe Harris complimented the work of Babe Herman, the youngster who may displace him some day at the first bassock and the boy of whom Manager Lee Fohl thinks so much.

Wamby, a veteran in the game, and a keen judge of good prospect "yessed" at his team mate and did it in a fashion that would cause one to believe he meant the same.

It's funny to hear the old timers praise the ability of the kids that some day will fill their shoes and cause them to either retire from the game or join the minors.

Bob Quinn says that in the old days a youngster had to be a phenom or he had little chance to make the grade.

Those old timers didn't relish for a minute a brilliant play on the part of any kid especially if that individual was looking for his berth.

"Everything possible was done to break the spirit of the youngster in the old days," said Quinn. "There were occasions when violence was used, but that was only seldom. Nevertheless it was tough going."

John Heving.

Now we have veteran players whose years of service are limited, praise a rookie.

Of course Harris will stay in big league baseball just so long as he can hit and he still has his "eye." The same goes for Wamby. Bill is blessed with a fine pair of legs, and can throw as well as when he broke into the big show.

Ball players are not made in a day. It will take some time to groom these lads who seek a regular uniform. When players like Harris and Wamby take an interest in a youngster, they encourage him and teach him the tricks of the trade.

Only the other day, John Heving caught during the batting practice. John looks the part and will be used as third-string catcher. Steve O'Neill waited his turn at bat. He noticed a fault in Heving's work and lost no time to correct it.

It seems to be an every day event in the camp. The vets have an unusual regard for the kids and they feel they owe to the management.

JACK DELANEY KNOCKS OUT PAUL BERLENBACH IN FOURTH

PHENOM IS EXPLODED QUICKLY

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, March 15 (Universal).—This will service to introduce to you a great middleweight fighter, who is known to fistiana as Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, Conn.

His right name is Oliva Chapdelaine, and he comes from Canada.

At Madison Square Garden he knocked out "Punch 'Em" Paul Berlenbach, the young fellow who had bowled over twenty-four opponents, one right after the other, in the last year.

Jack Delaney

Delaney settled Berlenbach in the fourth round. He knocked Berlenbach down with smashes to the jaw three times. Berlenbach reeled against the ropes, his hands at his sides when Referee Jack O'Sullivan stepped forward, pushing Delaney to one side, and led Berlenbach along the ropes to his own corner.

Old Dan Hickey, the, boy's manager and teacher, stood waiting for him, a sad expression on his face.

The most sensational fistic "phenom" of recent years was suddenly exploded, and no doubt Old Dan saw many a fond hope fade in the explosion.

DELANEY WALKED OVER AND LIFTED ONE OF PAUL'S HANDS

Delaney, a tall, rangy young fellow, who bears a slight facial resemblance to Jack Dempsey, walked over to Berlenbach's corner and lifted one of Berlenbach's limp hands.

Meantime, Delaney's friends from Bridgeport threw their hats in the air all over the big Garden, and cheered wildly.

Up to the third round, Berlenbach looked like a sure winner. He hammered Delaney fiercely about the body in the second round and when Delaney went to his corner he tracked a trifle unsteadily.

As the bell changed for the third, Berlenbach jumped up off his stool and walked directly to Delaney's corner. Delaney sat as if awaiting Berlenbach, or as if he hadn't heard the bell.

MET HIM WITH FIERCE RIGHT TO THE CHIN

Then when Berlenbach was almost on top of him, Delaney jumped up, and met the oncoming Paul with a fierce right hand smash to the chin. He never even stuck out his left. He let fly almost haphazard. Berlenbach stopped suddenly in his tracks, and reeled slightly. It was obvious that he was dazed.

Delaney saw his advantage, and began to pummel Berlenbach all over the ring. He out-boxed Paul with ease. He hit him with every punch he desired. But he could not get a good shot at Berlenbach's chin with that right again.

At the close of the round, however, Berlenbach went to his corner very tired. Delaney went at him in business-like fashion in the fourth and punched him solidly about the body and face, and clipped him on the chin with his right. Suddenly he knocked Berlenbach down with a right to the chin.

STASIAK MEETS KOTSONAROS THURSDAY

Stanley Stasiak, the Polish champion, again will be the feature attraction at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night when he will meet George Kotsonaros, the Greek champion, in a finish contest.

George Kotsonaros

Kotsonaros is confident of his ability to beat Stasiak. His only defeat so far this year was a defeat handed to him by Ed "Strangler" Lewis.

The Greeks will be out in force to see Kotsy topple the big Pole and should he turn the trick he will be right in line for a return match with Lewis.

Stasiak will make an effort also to force Lewis to meet him in a title go and he will put forth his best efforts to stave off the wily Greek.

The Poles will turn out in large numbers to see their new champion perform. He is one man in whom they have confidence, for they know that he does his best at all times and that is the spirit that counts with them.

In another event on the card, Miss Cora Livingston, the champion woman wrestler of the world, will meet Miss Nellie LaMar, the French champion woman wrestler. The match will be one fall to a positive finish.

George Farmer Bailey, the Brattleboro strong man, will meet Angelo Taramaschi, the Italian champion.

TOM KIRBY BEATS JOHNSON AT LYNN

One of the best amateur shows of the season was held by the Pioneer A. C. at Casino Hall, Lynn.

Tom Kirby, the national amateur heavyweight champion, defeated Jack Johnson in three rounds in the feature bout.

Eddie Devine, of Boston, was defeated in the final of the 126-pound class when he was robbed of the decision by the judges. He had not lost a fight in his last twenty starts up to this time, and when the judges decided in favor of Blodgett the hissing and booing could be heard for blocks.

SWIMMING MEET FOR SCHOOLS TODAY

Sixty-seven boys, representing thirteen schools, will take part in the fifth annual schoolboy swimming meet, which will take place at Curtis Hall, Y. M. C. A. Building, Huntington avenue, this afternoon.

Interest in the aquatic sport has increased greatly in the past year, and in today's meet five more schools are entered than there were last year.

Brookline High, whose swimmers earned the championship for the last three years, looks like the winner. Brookline High has eighteen boys in the meet. It is the largest representation.

Joseph McCarthy of Brookline, who won the 100 and 200-yard events a year ago, is expected to repeat. He will not have an easy field in the 200, however, as Lucason of Worcester Commerce, Rodeoil of Gardner High, and Chalmers of Huntington will make the water churn.

Lucason is the holder of the outdoor championship for the one and three mile distances.

PRINCETON TO MEET CORNELL TNIGHT

Princeton, N. J., March 15.—Princeton plays its most important game of the Intercollegiate Basketball League season tonight when it faces the league-leading Cornell Five in the final scheduled game of the season. A victory for Princeton tonight and a triumph next Tuesday in the re-play of a protested game with Dartmouth at New Haven, Ct., will give the Tigers a tie with the Ithacans. If Cornell wins, it will clinch the championship.

TUFTS FRESHMAN CANDIDATES CALLED

The Tufts College freshman baseball candidates will report to Coach "Ollie" Westcott next Monday afternoon in the Jumbo cage. The Brown and Blue Pikes are scheduled to play nine games.

Princeton has another game slated for Saturday this week with the Cornell University basket shooters in New Jersey, while Yale takes on Columbia at New Haven.

JONES BATTLES SHEVLIN FOR THE C. A. C.

By JACK CONWAY.

Jimmy Jones, Youngstown, O., welterweight has agreed to return to Boston, where he has twice triumphed in two starts, after negotiating with Boston promoters for more than three months.

Jones has agreed to meet Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury at Mechanics Building next Friday night and the bout looms up as the welterweight classic of the year.

Jimmie Jones

As he defeated Dave Shade and Eddie Shevlin in previous bouts here, there is little to say about the Westerner. His clearing in tactics and his ability to put over crushing punches made it almost impossible for him to come to grief.

In his last bout with Shevlin, the Dartmouth boxing instructor was not pleased with the decision. The fight was so close that the judges disagreed and the referee gave his vote to Jones.

Ever since then Shevlin has been on the trail of Jones but his duties at Hanover have kept him out of the ring for several weeks, although he has kept close to the gym and is in excellent shape.

Jones has cleaned up the ranks of the welters in all sections of the country since he last appeared here. After his two local showings, both fans are of the opinion that there are few better welterweights in the country.

The Westerner is on the trail of Mickey Walker for a title fight.

DECLARES GARDNER HAD BEST OF BOUT.

Mr. Leo Jasbon, of Dedham, writes: "Hats off to you Jack and the American, too. I have always felt the press more or less muzzled by boxing promoters with a block or two of free tickets. Hail American impartiality.

"The Tuesday night fight was a farce. Again but I am still trying to convince myself that Friedman earned the decision. I remain sadly disappointed. In Boston we feel proud of our important justice and true sportsmanship. Where was such judgment and justice Tuesday night?

"Personally I feel that Gardner's fighting in the Opera House is trespassing on prohibited territory and destined to lose than a fifty-fifty break. Going further, you presented the decision and in strong language expressed their profound disappointment.

"When the decision was rendered the approval was noticeably feeble—while the protests resembled a small earthquake.

"Let's not condemn too much—we all err—but the same error should not strike in the same place twice. For Tuesday's fracas was a repetition of a previous Friedman and Gardner fight. An ardent Friedman rooter sitting near me said: 'Thanks for the gift.'"

SOUTH END FAN ALSO FAVORS GARDNER

John Burke of No. 50 Dover street writes:

"Four friends along with myself went to witness the Friedman-Gardner fight and in our opinion Gardner won the fight, at least by seven of the ten rounds. We think the verdict was the worst we have ever seen and we have followed up both fighting and boxing for over twenty-five years."

SAYS FRIEDMAN HAD THINGS HIS OWN WAY

Here's another:

"I read your question in the paper last night. To begin with I did not like the idea of it, no doubt you read the paper and saw who the decision and fight went to.

"Friedman outboxed, outgeneraled and was too good in general for Gardner. If you did not happen to pick the right one in the fray, the public will forgive you, but such stuff as questioning the verdict because it did not agree with your selection is a lot of bunk, in plain English.

GEORGE (KID) LEE IS WINNER OVER BYRON

Worcester, March 15.—George "Kid" Lee, of Worcester, wrested the New England lightweight title from Sailor Byron, also of Worcester, in a ten-round bout.

The title-holder scored heavily in some of the rounds on infighting but lacked aggressiveness and was beaten in the majority of rounds.

Tommy Flanagan of New Bedford won a technical kayo over Francis Rossi of Brockton in the semi-final.

RAYMIE SKILTON HOCKEY STAR, IS MARRIED

Sporting and athletic circles in the Hub evidenced keen interest when the news of the marriage of "Raymie" Skilton, well-known hockey star, was made known.

The new Mrs. Raymond Skilton was formerly Miss Natalie Stearns of Newton. Recently was year old physical culture instructor.

The couple were married Thursday night at the home of the bride's parents, No. 2 Second street, Newton, and immediately sped away on their honeymoon.

Only relatives of the couple were present at the ceremony. announcement of the wedding was not made until after the couple had left on their trip. Many congratulations were sent out by relatives of the bride.

Skilton's all around hockey playing has for fifteen years been the great attraction at the Boston Arena. He was also active in football, baseball, swimming and about every other sport of the kind.

Miss Stearns is a graduate of the Boston School of Physical Culture. She has served as instructor at a private school for girls in Needham and at the Brimmer School.

JACK SHARKEY HAS BIG SOCK

Jack Sharkey

Most heavyweights rely almost entirely upon their right hand and in order to gain the margin of victory. When they are unable to put over the right hand wallop, they are usually helpless.

Sharkey, on the other hand, has a shaker left hook which packs a real crushing effect. He lets this blow go to the body and head with equal crushing effect.

Dempsey has started most of his opponents on the way to defeat with left hand swallops. The Tiger does not call upon his right-hand belt until he has his opponent in poor condition.

BOSTON ALL STARS DEFEAT TOWNSEND

Townsend, March 15.—The Boston All-Stars defeated the Townsend American Legion basketball team in a thrilling game at the Town Hall. The score was 34 to 30.

At the end of the first half the Townsend team was ahead 12 to 3 and it looked like their game. Just as the game was to finish the All-Stars tied the score, 30 to 30.

The referee ordered a five-minute overtime period, in which the Boston team scored two baskets and won.

The game was the hardest fought battle of the Boston All-Stars this season.

M'GRAW STRONG FOR JIMMY O'CONNELL

Sarasota, Fla., March 15.—Jimmy O'Connell the $75,000 "bust" of 1923 will develop into the $75,000 "beauty" of 1924—in the opinion of John McGraw.

Jimmy O'Connell

The one time Pacific Coast League star who reported to the Giants last Spring with a blare of trumpets flivvered quite a bit when he got his big league chance.

But that, explains McGraw, was due to the fact that because so much was expected of him he became nervous and over-anxious and that affected his work.

However, the work in the league seems to have seasoned and cured him of lack of faith in himself.

If his training camp work is any tip-off whatsoever, O'Connell will be a sensation in the National League in 1924.

EAST BOSTON AND HYDE PARK FIGHT

East Boston and Hyde Park will fight it out for the Boston district school championship this afternoon at the East Armory. Only one point separates the two schools, East Boston holding the lead.

East Boston is not expected to score heavily in the senior events, but has a preponderance of strength in both the junior and intermediate divisions.

Hyde Park is particularly strong in the senior division, and it may succeed in getting sufficient points in the junior and intermediate events to give it the edge in the finals.

The following schools, in order of their present standing, in the meet will compete: East Boston, 72 1-6 points; Hyde Park, 70 5-6 points; Jamaica Plain, 47 5-6 points; Boston Trade, 47 points; Charlestown, 17 1-2 points; South Boston 13 points; Hilton, 6 points.

It can be seen from the above standing that second place will be between Jamaica Plain and Boston Trade.

Don't Trifle With the Ten Commandments

"If you break the Ten Commandments they will break you," is the underlying theme in the film at the Tremont. You can see just how it happens, too, for Danny McTavish broke all the commandments he could find and then went broke himself.

FASHION IN HEROES RE-SET BY HUNTER

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THERE is something in the idealism and sincerity of youth that makes its own appeal and which, when you brush against it in the theatre, usually leaves a lasting imprint upon the man of sentimental inclination. When you came face to face with the rare qualities of youth as reflected by Glenn Hunter in "Merton of the Movies" there is nothing left for the playgoer but to accept the inevitable and admit that, after all, the theatre does occasionally provide an exhilaration quite beyond the belief of those who gather their thrills from girlie shows and bleating saxophones.

MR. HUNTER comes to the Hollis as the central figure in a play that combines excellent entertainment and rollicking comedy with an impressive lesson in the virtue of holding to a faith in one's ideal. A magazine story and two hard working dramatists provided Mr. Hunter with his material, but when you dig a bit deeper into the motives leading up to the production of "Merton of the Movies" you find that Mr. Hunter himself was his own discoverer—that he persuaded George C. Tyler to produce the delightful Merton in play form before venturing with him into screenland. Curiously enough, as you were told by Mr. Hunter, "Merton of the Movies," though first intended for screen adaptation by Mr. Tyler, was diverted to the speaking stage upon the convincing argument of Mr. Hunter, then a well established figure in filmland. These movements of Tyler and Hunter almost take on the aspect of double desertion, for Merton was to be Mr. Tyler's medium of invasion into the whirl of Hollywood. It is not admitted that he had Mr. Hunter in mind for the role.

Glenn Hunter has a way of making his youth an impressive quality.

"I HAD been making a series of pictures when I read 'Merton of the Movies,'" explained Mr. Hunter, "and I immediately thought it was just the kind of a story for the stage. When I found that Mr. Tyler had purchased the producing rights I was astonished to discover that he planned only a screen version. I wanted the piece for the speaking stage, although I was a speechless actor myself at the time. I had done so many amah things in the theatre that I wanted my chance at bigger roles and I believed one would be found in Merton. Mr. Tyler, if he didn't agree with me, was willing to take the venture, which explains the whole story. With Merton safely and securely settled in public favor as a play on the speaking stage, we naturally have boundless faith in the screen production that is to be made at the close of my present season. As Merton belongs to the movies by almost divine right we naturally expect much of the young man for a season or two more."

MOSES OF ISRAEL COMES TO LIFE IN MR. DE MILLE'S "TEN COMMANDMENTS"

CRITICS usually disagree—that's why they're critics. But it is a reasonable venture to suggest that probably they all will agree that nothing in the literature of this or any other age equals in dramatic possibility the imposing, impressive narratives found in the Old Testament. There you will find the last word in hard hitting drama—the drama with a punch. As one of the modern characters in "The Ten Commandments" reminds his erring brother, a scoffing modernist: "Don't forget, Danny, the Ten Commandments pack an awful wallop." The Old Testament, as you gaze upon it in living, moving action at the Tremont, does more than merely entertain you with a vivid picturization of the tragedy of Israel—it inspires you with a deeper respect for the screen and its product, and for Cecil B. DeMille, whose vision and labor made this spectacular picture possible. With the production of "The Ten Commandments" Mr. DeMille is celebrating his half century mark in screen productions, this being his fiftieth important effort since 1912, when at the request of Jesse L. Lasky he journey to Hollywood to make two moving picture adaptations—"The Squaw Man" and "The Call of the North." It must be added, for Mr. DeMille's biographer tells me that both pictures were made in a barn that was temporarily converted into a studio. The success of these productions was so marked that the DeMille place in filmland was definitely fixed, whereupon he embarked upon his long career as director general of the Lasky West Coast studios. Mr. DeMille, by inherited right, belongs to the theatre and its kindred affiliations. He was born in Massachusetts 43 years ago, the son of Henry C. DeMille, a distinguished author of more than a generation ago, whose "The Wife," "The Charity Ball" and "The Lost Paradise" were the outstanding dramatic successes of the period. The mother, too, belonged to the theatre and for many years directed a successful play agency. Mr. DeMille himself has been an actor, author and producer in the legitimate field. For a man in his early forties he is getting along very well, thank you.

CANNOT KEEP VAN OUT OF FILMS

How many of you remember Wally Van? Back in the days when movies were just becoming popular, Wally was among the shinning faces that peered out at the public, which was still dazed at seeing pictures actually moving, and along with John Bunny, "Broncho Billy" Anderson and Flora Finch, he built up such popularity, as a comedian that, it is safe to say, is rivaled by no one today. Of course Wally was just a boy then and for that matter he still is, but a few years ago he left the movies flat, never to return.

It's like everything else, this movie game, and "they" say, if you once get the sand in your shoes, you are bound to get back and so here is another case where "they" are right.

Van's first picture since his return is "The Drivin' Fool" which will be shown at the Fenway today.

A strong supporting cast includes, Patsy Ruth Miller, Alec B. Francis, Wilton Taylor and Ramsey Wallace.

Here's A Stage Beauty With Broad Ambition

There used to be an old theory that young ladies of the stage remained awake to see the sun rise and slept long after midday, but this theory is upset by Maxine Wilson, one of the beauties of the Greenwich Village Follies at the Shubert. Miss Wilson gets up at seven o'clock every morning, studies vocal culture and language, as she is arranging for an operatic career. Miss Wilson is a Southern society girl and beauty, and comes from San Antonio, Texas. She is a graduate of Bellecourt Seminary, a smart finishing school in Washington, D. C. After graduation, Miss Wilson devoted her time to the study of piano for two years under John M. Steinfelt, and also Professor Glaetsner of Washington, D. C. She then took up vocal culture.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

WILBUR—"In Love With Love," a comedy by Vincent Lawrence. The adversities which beset four young lovers furnish the theme. Heading the cast are Lynn Fontanne and Ralph Morgan, whose acting exploits have covered a wide range of parts. Also in the company are Robert Strange, Donald Foster, Edward Donnelly, Greta Kemble-Cooper and Frances Grayson. Produced by William Harris, Jr.

FENWAY— (Opening today) "The Drivin' Fool." Sensational photo-drama which concerns a transcontinental automobile race. Has comedy moments, as well as those with thrills. In the cast are Wally Van, Patsy Ruth Miller and Alex Francis. With the photoplay feature will be the usual incidental Paramount program, including news and comedy reels, an orchestral concert and an organ recital by Del Castillo.

* * *

SOMERVILLE—"Little Old New York," a comedy by Rida Johnson Young. A repeat engagement, having been successfully performed by the Somerville Players a few weeks ago. Leeta Corder will be seen as vivacious Patricia O'Day and Bernard Nedell will play Larry Delevan. Others in the cast are Frank Thomas, Halbert Brown, Ann MacDonald, Darry Welford and Phil Sheffield.

* * *

LOEW'S STATE—Gloria Swanson in "A society Scandal" as the feature, with "Defying Destiny" presented as a companion picture. "A Society Scandal" is an adaptation of Alfred Sutro's "The Laughing Lady," recently presented here with Ethel Barrymore in the stella role. Male Model Turns Gifts To Silver Sheet

You've seen his picture everywhere and often wondered who he was—the man whose likeness stares down upon you from billboards and electric signs, car cards and store windows. So, please meet Alban Simpson, erstwhile nationally famous artists' model, at present playing an important supporting role opposite Gloria Swanson in "A Society Scandal," which will be shown at Loew's State Theatre next week. You might recall Simpson in "The Glimpses of the Moon," and in "The Exciters" with Bebe Daniels, but this is his first real big chance.

Mr. Courtenay Pins Medal On Fred Wright

Do you believe in hunches? Most people do, especially in the theatrical profession as evidenced in the communication sent to a Boston playgoer by William Courtney, the stage star, in which he expresses himself as follows: "I am returning to Boston on Monday, March 24, playing at the Selwyn Theatre in 'Dangerous People,' and feel certain that the piece will go over. This is based on the fact that we are playing

Miss MacDonald Gathers Reputation As Cook

Ann MacDonald has taken up light housekeeping. The popular head of Mr. McArdle's performers at the Somerville Theatre has domiciled herself into a small apartment not far from the theatre where she is enjoying all the "comforts of Rome," yes, sir, she's a good cook. Miss MacDonald is equally at home as a culinary worker as she is in emotional scenes behind the footlights. "It is surprising what one can really accomplish in the necessary duties of the home when thrown upon one's own resources" says Miss MacDonald, "and I frankly confess I get a lot of fun out of it, especially in my cooking." In her association with the Somerville Players, Miss MacDonald has thoroughly entrenched herself with the clientele of the Davis Square playhouse. She possesses wide theatrical experience, covering a period of ten years with many of the important stock companies of the country.

Lexington and Concord Washed Into the Sea

Believe it or not, but Lexington and Concord were washed into Long Island Sound recently. A recent blizzard hit D. W. Griffith's studios at Mamaroneck and destroyed replicas of the famous towns built for the photodrama "America."

Testimonial to Manager Fred E. Wright

Fred E. Wright, manager of the Selwyn Theatre, is to have a testimonial. The date is Monday, March 24th; the place is his own theatre; and the attraction will be William Courtenay in "Dangerous People." 'Twill be a gay affair.

LYNN YIELDS NEW FILM FAVORITE

Few of the people who are stirring their patriotism through D. W. Griffith's "America" at the Majestic know that Neil Hamilton, who plays the hero, was born just outside of Boston. His birthplace is Lynn, where he lived three years, until the family moved to Athol. In this little town he grew up, and there his boyhood recollections and associations are. He went to the grammar and high schools of the town, and relates an amusing incident of his schooling there.

"When I was at school," said Mr. Hamilton, "I used to hate history, and was often reproached by my teacher for my indifference. 'Do you ever look at your books?' she would ask, despairingly. And when I mumbled an assent, 'Well,' she'd say, 'I guess all you do is look at them.'

"Recently in New York I was surprised, upon opening what I thought to be a 'fan' letter, to read this: 'I little thought that when I was trying to instill history into you years ago that you would be teaching more history in two hours that I ever could.'"

It was signed "Jeannette McGregor"—his former history teacher.

Delysia Hopes To Desert Revues For Drama

Alice Delysia, now being presented in "Topics of 1923" coming to the Shubert March 24th, is frank in the expression of her desire one day to leave the revue stage and play a strong dramatic piece. In "Topics of 1923" I have moments when I approach the dramatic more strongly than ever before in my career," she explains. "I have three sketches in my revue in which I play three women of widely varying characters, Queen Elizabeth, Madam Pompadour, and a courtesan in a Chinese court. These sketches give me some of the best opportunities of my career."

Sirens Complicate Romance

DRAWN BY WALT VAN ARSDALE

WALT VAN ARSDALE

J-15 Copyright 1924 by King Features Syndicate Inc.

IN the far years that are vanished the fabled mariner stopped the ears of his crew so they could not hear, and had himself strapped to his ship so he could not change his course, when the sirens sang their enchanting songs. Today many a man straps a receiver to his ears and, lulled by the melodies that float o'er the air, enchanted by the magic music and his dreams of her who sings or plays, forgets the GIRL who waits for him. Golf claims its widows, 'tis said, but who today gives thought to the radio-widowed girl who sits alone and sorrows because of her loneliness? How SHE wishes that she could tune in and weave the melody that would enthrall his heart!

—WALT VAN ARSDALE.

YOUR BEAUTY

GIVING SEASON

By Maria Jeritza

Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day

WITHIN, a few days Spring will be here! What a thrill is in the very thought!

It is part of the magic of spring time that no matter how old and world-weary we may be it enthralls us anew each year by its marvel and its mystery.

Each Spring transforms this old world into youthful loveliness. And Spring will do as much for us if we but let it, and learn, like Shakespeare's violets and daffodils, to "take the March winds with beauty."

The normal, healthful woman enjoys every season, hence every season brings her gifts of charm and grace. She loves nature alike in gay and sober mood. But Spring is the one irresistible season when even the chronic grumbler finds fault for the time being the "Winter of her discontent" is "made glorious Summer."

When Spring days begin to melt the ice and snow into gay rivulets and bring wandering breezes that mysteriously suggest the fragrance of violets and arbutus, you are going to feel a wild impulse to rush out into the fresh air, to country woods and meadows green. If you are wise, you will follow rather than suppress this impulse, for it is a call to joy and health and beauty.

But just a moment before you start. I am going to play the rôle of mother for one moment if I may and ask:

"Have you your rubbers? Are you wearing your warm muffler or fur piece? Surely you have not your new spring suit on!"

I know it is almost summery at this moment. But do you realize that you may return in an hour or so in a shower, a pale of north wind or a blizzard?

Also you will, I know, return with the loveliest roses in your cheeks—natural ones—and possibly carrying a spray of pussy willow or perchance laurel or a few shy violets!

And within your heart will be the satisfied longing for the feel of the brown earth and sights and sounds of Spring.

You are not likely to return with freckles or a sunburned nose or a wind roughened skin, for I am sure you take always the invaluable beauty precaution before you start out into the Spring winds.

You rub a good cold cream or olive oil, with a bit of almond oil and a drop or two of benzoin added, into your skin, remove the surplus with absorbent cotton and dust your face with rice powder. With this protection you are fortified against both sun and wind.

When you remove the powder before retiring, if you should discover a freckle or two—and it cannot be—you might rub into your skin a mixture of three parts lemon juice and one part milk. Also this is done well, then rub in a little more cold cream and remove the surplus. Repeating the process every night should keep your freckles well bleached if it does not entirely banish them.

Another wonder aid to one wearing a veil at this season, when wind and dust are flying is the Mother Nature sweeps the earth to prepare it for scrubbing in April and fresh flower embroidered corners in May.

Wear a hair net and a trim, close fitting hat, a walking costume and rubbers. And go out of doors and stay out. You will in this way share in the glorious joy, the renewal of health, beauty and youth that are the very meaning of Spring-time.

FADS OF FASHION

THE last rose of Summer fades into insignificance compared to the conventional red rose of black velvet with a silver dust centre and silver edging the petals. Such a large, single flower is a most favored trimming for afternoon frocks or for evening gowns and wraps.

Quite a snug fit is acquired by the waistcoat that accompanies the severely plain tailored suit which has become the rage of the season. Suits of navy, tan or gray twill, or of duck with a white linen stripe, and the separate fitted waistcoats of white pique, linen, moire, bengaline or flannel.

Bobbing the suit, the hat for day time wear is, perforce, a severely plain affair this Spring. There are the overwhelming vogue for large, square brocade or cloche, tricorne or turban. The buckle trim may consist of one large or several small ones, drawn through a ciré, grosgrain or metal ribbon band. When a single buckle is used, 'tis generally placed at the centre front, where its solitary glory is most strikingly impressive.

Completely on the square are the new mesh veils that show large leaf designs of solid braid in colors contrasting with the body of the veil. Tan veils with brown braiding and gray with dark blue, are two of the most favored combinations. Veils for Southern resort wear are also square, having woven silk mesh centres with deep chiffon borders. The two bright shades most popular for these sport veils are tomato and canary.

Dark as night are the "mind night" braid bands, which are a decidedly darker shade of gray than the black pearls and very much more lustrous. They are used to create the smartest choker length necklaces, earrings and bracelets, and are usually combined with small crystal or with large cream-colored beads of the same size as these "midnight" pearls.

Playing with fire seems a favorite pastime with the women who actually chooses to arouse a veritable conflagration by wearing flame color evening frocks and flaming scarlet and yellow combined with white for their sports toggery.

How to Make Curtains

By PRISCILLA PRICE

The windows of the first houses had no panes of glass in them. For they were used chiefly to poke guns through, when the enemies knocked. Nowadays, we think of a window as a frame with a certain number of pieces of glass in it. And instead of "sighting" enemies through the windows, we put up glass curtains to keep people from seeing in.

Glass curtains, or under curtains, as they are sometimes called, should be close to the window itself. For instance, in a bedroom, upper and lower sash curtains are often attached by a rod to the window sashes, so that when the windows are raised from the bottom and lowered from the top at night, the curtains go right up, or down, with them. This helps to keep the curtains from getting soiled. And, from blowing out into the wind or rain. A friend of mine who is very tidy, says she always has her bedroom sash curtains in two pairs. She trims the inside edges and the bottom with narrow cotton fringe (she uses scrim curtains) and attaches little brass rings instead of making a raceway for the rod to go through. In this way, she can push the curtains back whenever she wants to let in more light. I have seen such sash curtains, they are sometimes called "Dutch curtains," finished with very narrow ruffles. If you use plain ones, the hem is prettiest about an inch and a half deep. And the top of the heading should stand just above the edge of the sash.

Cotton sunfast makes dainty and serviceable overdraperies in a bedroom. Make a deep valance, say sixteen inches or more, and put it on a curved rod. Let your hem be about three inches deep, the heading about an inch and a half. The rule for valances is one-sixth to one-fifth the length of the overdraperies, but you must use your own judgment, depending upon the length of your windows. If a window is not very long, you will only shorten it by using a deep valance. Another thing I'm rather fussy about, is connecting overdraperies by a short piece, valance effect. I think this tends to make the window look much shorter, and to me it never looks graceful or finished. I think a really effective valance should go clear across the pair of overdraperies. It can be fastened down at each side by a thumbtack or two where they won't show.

One of the prettiest living rooms I ever saw had the valances held in place by pairs of rods. This friend told me that she simply made straight bands, with a raceway and heading (one inch) at each edge, and ran the rods through them. She nailed the upper natures in place and, stretching the valance tightly, fastened the lower rod in place. These valances were of figured cretonne, and there were no side draperies, just the gold sunfast glass curtains, finished at the bottom only with wide silk fringe. They hung from the top, just under the valance.

Next week I'll tell about different ways of arranging furniture.

HOW DIFFERENT IT LOOKS!

WHEN you put up [illegible] everybody says, "How pretty they make the room look!"

FOR GLASS CURTAINS, at living room windows, or on French doors, you can get Scotch muslin that resembles leaded glass panes. Yard wide, 40 cents. Very effective embroidered design, pattern not large.

OVERDRAPERIES are pretty if made of colored sunfast, silk or cotton. All lovely colors, cotton, $1.00. Fibre silk, $1.50. Both, yard wide.

A PATTERN for making overdraperies costs 50 cents. Use ruffled tie-backs, and fancy rosettes on valance.

FIGURED CRETONNE, natural background with little flowers, or black with blue stripes and slender birches with baskets of flowers. 15 cents, yard wide.

A PLAIN OVERVALANCE of 15-cent lavender-flowered cretonne would be pretty in a guest room. Bind it with plain lavender and use little tassels. A pattern comes for this, 50 cents.

GOLD CASEMENT curtaining is nice in a library. Gives a soft glow. Yard wide, 35 cents. You wouldn't need over draperies with this. Other colors, too.

FISHNET in large square mesh looks well on French doors. Or, at good sized windows. Natural, $1.25, colored, $1.50. Both 45 inches wide. Smaller mesh, but equally effective, is $1.25. 38 inches wide. Blue, green or rose. Finish at bottom with heavy fringe. Many people hang it in one straight piece over a window.

IN A DINING-ROOM you could use fishnet that has colored squares in its design. Blue, gold or rose on natural. Priced $1.50, 40 inches wide. Or make a spread of it, over pink or blue, for your bed. Very effective.

THE PRETTIEST NEW NET has narrow or wide stripes that look like double-mesh, but aren't really. $1.00 a yard, yard wide. Very dainty for a bedroom, plain or with frills. Also good for doors.

EVERFAST cottons come at two prices, 55 and 79 cents a yard. Yard wide. Look like pongee. All lovely colors. Let them hang straight from the rod, with a box-pleated overvalance. Pattern costs 50 cents.

TRICORNES COME TO THE FRONT

NEW TRICORNES have very small brims. They do not show the sharply pointed lines of other seasons; and so make the hats easy to wear.

SMALL CLOCHE with upturned front brim is very smart. In black or brown satin with little brush trimmings, or bows of narrow or wide ribbon. Helmet crown is popular. Sometimes trimmed with strappings of ribbon while the rest of the hat is of straw or silk.

SECTIONAL CROWNS are good, too. Many filled with tiny pink or yellow roses and contrasting ribbons. Large ribbon bow on one side. Another style is a small black straw shape with a rosette of shaded yellow and blue roses covering the entire right side. Filmy black lace is gathered around the rosette, and falls in streamers to the shoulder.

VERY STYLISH is the new helmet cloche with its turned-up front cuff and practically no back trimming at all.

FOR TAILORED STYLES licorice braid is popular.

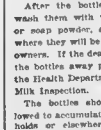
CURRANTS AND FLOWERS make more dressy trimmings.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. F. X. MAHONEY.
Boston Health Commissioner.

I WISH to direct the attention of consumers of milk and cream to the fact that the quality of these important food products may be greatly affected by exposure and lack of oversight.

They should receive proper care after delivery. This feature is important at all seasons. Help protect supplies of milk and cream by observing the following.



Dr. Mahoney.

Keep cold at all times.

Have bottles covered to protect from contamination.

After the bottles are emptied, wash them with water and soap or soap powder, and place them where they will be collected by the owners. If the dealers do not take the bottles away promptly, notify the Health Department, Bureau of Milk Inspection.

The bottles should not be allowed to accumulate around households or elsewhere. When this occurs, many of these containers find their way into ash barrels, and eventually to the city dumps, conditions unfavorable to good milk supplies.

It is a violation of law to use milk or cream bottles for anything but milk, cream, skimmed milk or buttermilk. Compliance with this provision means cleaner containers and better service by milkmen.

Milk dealers should bring these facts to the attention of their customers.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

My baby is eight months old. Have been getting him a spoonful of chopped spinach with butter and also twice a week also the yolk of half an egg mashed fine, but it does not seem to agree with him.

Mrs. E. B.

Do not give the baby any more spinach. Many children cannot digest spinach. It is frequently irritating and its supposed virtues are based on false premises.

I have a skin disease which broke out on my face, then about two or three weeks starting first with a round, scaley spot on the calf of my leg, sometimes it almost disappears and then it returns. I can hood prevent be kept down by stimulating certain foods?

M. J.

You may have a form of skin disease known as Psoriasis. This is a disease in which an unqualified opinion as to the future cannot be safely ventured. The prognosis is on a rule favorable as to the immediate eruption, and invariably as to the earlier attacks. In fact, all attacks can be relieved, and the disfigurement prevents, but this persistence unfortunately often lacking. Houever, a skin specialist will make a diagnosis for you.

What is ringworm?

A. A. L.

Ringworm of the skin yields readily to treatment, but upon the scalp is usually chronic. When the disease attacks the scalp, the hair usually falls out, leaving large areas wholly bald. The skin of these areas is usually dry and crusted. The diseased particles of hair, dandruff and the inflammation of the area and new areas arise from scratching.

What are the symptoms of neurasthenia and what can be done for it?

M. C. C.

This is a form of nerve fatigue and is manifested by irritability or sleeplessness and other indications of nervousness after exercise. It is often due to irregular habits, long hours of work, poor living, physical conditions and improper nourishment. Excessive fear or morbid worry and weariness may also be symptoms and will call for investigation in order to prevent development of a more serious nature.

Is it safe for a person thirty-two years old to have tonsils removed? I can sometimes swallow quite well. Also have a ringing in my ears. I have been told a short electrical treatment. Is there any place in Boston where a person can obtain such treatment at a low cost? Every time I have an attack of tonsilitis my stomach is bad and I have a faint, hysterical feeling.

E. O. P.

From what you say, it would seem probably that you have diseased tonsils which ought to come out. The danger from such an operation depends chiefly on a person's general physical condition, which can only be determined by a physical examination by a reputable physician. The result of improved treatments and X-Ray treatments of the diseases of the tonsils have thus far been disappointing.

CHICKIE

The Beautiful, but Bluntly Honest Story of a Boston Girl

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

THE STORY OF CHICKIE THUS FAR

Chickie Bryce's first romance ended disastrously. At seventeen she had created the illusion that Arthur Bonnar, a school chum, was going to propose to her but when he announced he was going away she was broken-hearted. Then Chickie's chum, Mary Blake, was married. At eighteen Chickie secured a position in a broker's office and there met Janina, a girl wise in the ways of the world. Jimmie, Mary's brother, declares his love for Chickie, but she puts him off. Chickie meets a member of men and finally goes to a party with Jake Munson and a bunch of his friends, but her father is alarmed over what he terms his girl's waywardness. Barry Dunne calls at the Bryce home, and, contrary to expectations, Chickie's father received him kindly. They go for a ride and Chickie gets her first kiss. Surprised, but happy, she thinks only of Barry, but next day meets Jake on the street and is persuaded to dine with him. He invites her to join a party on his yacht for a trip to Florida. Next day he sends her a pin set with sapphires.

"Dear Jake: Don't think me ungrateful, but it's impossible

SHE said with a sudden warmth: "I don't believe Jake Munson ever dreamed such things as you hint! He couldnt. He's too big—too kind—"

A faint scorn touched his lips. "You have it your own way, Chickie. I haven't said anything about Jake so far as I know."

"It's worse than if you did, and not half as honest."

"Oh, so." Well, I'm sorry." He didn't look at her. The young mouth she liked so well because it was full and sweet and very gay shut firmly. "Perhaps you know your own business, Chickie, but I'm sure whatever you do or not do and take all the knocks that comes with that's all right. That's fine. Only you've never acted that way."

Her eyes sank into her eyes. She said bitterly, "What's the use of living if things are like this."

He looked at her intently. Seeing her so drooping and white he said hastily, "Please don't. He took her hands caress. Listen, Chickie—Any so miserable? Lots of things in the world besides a trip on a yacht."

"Well, I wanted to go. I just wanted it like anything. Oh, I think it's too frightful to be always looking for hideous things."

He could scarcely keep the buoyant note from his voice. "You're not going then?"

Her lips kept blinking. She said bleakly: "It's one o'clock I'll be late. I wish I didn't have to go back to work."

Doesn't Believe Things

When they reached the building he said insistently: "Please tell me, Chickie. You aren't going?"

"Oh, I don't know what to do! No matter what you say—I don't believe such nurses. I don't!"

As she came into the office Janina rose, met her with a soft kiss and a smile. Lucky girl, she said. "Well—rather gorgeous, isn't it? Oh don't look so startled Ida was telling me. Have you arranged to get the time off?"

"I haven't arranged anything."

"Well, you better my dear! Better have it all fixed up! There won't be any last minute getaway to get home to papa this trip!"

Chickie answered, flushing but with a supreme effort to be superficial: "What trip is this you speak of, one thing?"

"The trip that hasn't any coming back till Sunday. I shan't be telling you much more."

Chickie had had a look of pouring dismay washed off the face with an effusion she could repress the smile. Janina's voice swift, keen, "I said it. He leaned with both hands on my desk. His lips were a caress. To her astonishment a thing like a soft breeze swept through her thoughts.

But at lunch she went through the building and out at side door. She didn't want to see him. She didn't want to hear Jake.

In the street Jake was looking for her. "Where's the car? Taxi—one of the cars! Taxi—one of the cars! We're awfully busy to-day. Where's the car?"

She took off her hat and coat from the room.

She spent the whole morning writing a letter to Jake Munson. When she finished it was both stiff, kind, pathetic thing quite different from her little chatter.

"Dear Jake: You are so kind—I want to take me on this glorious trip and I really wanted to go. But seeing as things are I don't. Maybe we will see each other sometime. Please don't think me ungrateful but it's just impossible for me to go. CHICKIE."

She didn't even notice the resentful tear that blurred the last line. She folded the sheet hastily, thinking dully: "Well, that's ended! I wonder what I've done?"

"Chickie, are you going to throw me down like this?"

"I never took you at—so I don't see how I'm throwing you down."

"You let me think it were coming."

"No—I didn't. You cannot think that I'm not. I don't see that I am do. I wrote she kept her eyes averted her cheeks burning. Jake looked at her a long while in silence.

He said quietly, "You let me in for a ghastly two weeks of it, Chickie. I can't call it off now. I've asked everybody—arranged it all. I've got to go." He slumped down into the automobile, letting his arm rest behind her.

Parked Among Trees

They were parked among the trees on the road to the Cape. The water was a black still, mysterious chalice that caught the gay little stars, the leaves and the yellow moon, cradling them in a deep rhythmic hush.

"We would have had nights like that, Chickie—nights so beautiful you'd burn to hear that friend of mine you're waiting for. Are you going to let it pass? Going to let me go alone, Chickie?"

"Perhaps you think it's easy for me to refuse pleasures like this, Mr. Munson."

"Jake—if you please—I thank you for putting it in the note. Do you mean you want to go?" You'd really like the fun of it?"

"Well—you ask yourself that—Jake then. I've never had a chance like this before. Of course, I wanted to go."

"Then why, Chickie? Why? You want these things. I want to give them to you."

"No—I can't." I explained."

"Yes—you explained, Jennie indeed! Do you think I'm a boy, Chickie, dear, to swallow your pretty Jennie stuff. I'd like to know what happened to set you thinking. And you come back and throw me down."

She gave no answer. His hand

The Picturesque Medieval City of Nuremberg

PERHAPS the most picturesque large city of [illegible] Nuremberg, where the toys of the famous German toy maker. It has yielded less to modern conditions than Berlin, Hamburg, Dresden and Munich, and many of the old customs are zealously preserved.

In the Middle Ages it was renowned for its [illegible] which gathered [illegible] from all over Europe. Wagner made comic opera, but the opera which contains some of his best known music is "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," and deals with one of these [illegible].

As you ride through the narrow streets with the tall and top-heavy houses on either side, steeped in history dating two or three centuries back and still serving as tenements as they did in those days, it is difficult to believe you are in the twentieth century. The bridges across the river still are encumbered with houses and either side of the driveway, just as London Bridge used to be before the British cleared those shanties away as nuisances.

The castle, frowning upon the city, is equally medieval. Its fortifications are untouched and it contains the most famous torture chamber in Europe.

Much has been written of the ingenious tortures of the Spanish Inquisitors, but nothing quite so diabolical as the Iron Virgin of Nuremberg can be found in Spain. The Iron Virgin still stands in the castle, though it is at least a couple of centuries since she had a victim.

She is an iron figure, a little larger than a man, fashioned like a nun. It opens and the victim is placed inside. The front half of the figure contains sharp spikes so placed as to fit, when the door is shut, into the eyes and stomach of the victim. When the figure was completely closed the person inside was dead, impaled upon these spikes. The Germans merrily tell small stories which have delicate cates of this interesting [illegible].

A more agreeable survival is the bridal cup of Nuremberg. This is a framework containing [illegible] one above the other and swinging on pegs. At Nuremberg weddings it is still the custom for the bride and bridegroom to quaff from these joined cups. The tradition is that the first who empties the cup without spilling a drop will rule the household.

There are no vast toy factories because most of the toys are fashioned in the home—father, mother and all the children working to make the toys according to the instructions given them by the master toymakers.

Like all German cities, Nuremberg is full of beer cafes and gardens, but even these are made more picturesque by their general antiquity.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the most common birds in this country is the blackhawk. He [illegible] sleep on anything but a [illegible].

HE figures that anybody who goes home before 8 a. m. is a coward.

THE factory whistle which blows at seven o'clock in the morning is a night hawk's curfew.

THEY can't see any sense to daylight. To them nature is only wasting the sun.

THE sun's no good at all, and only gets in your eyes when you're trying to sleep.

WHENEVER one of these midnight buzzards goes out in the day time he always wears smoked glasses.

THEY'D rather have one of Mr. Edison's globes that they can turn off whenever it's bothering them.

TO them, beds are no good at all except for sick people.

WHEN a night hawk furnishes a home that's the last piece of furniture he buys.

ONE guy said he had an uncle who died in bed and he's been afraid to lie down ever since. He goes to sleep in taxicabs between cafes.

THE only time he ever had a good day was when a cop knocked him unconscious.

WHEN he woke up it was still dark and he was ashamed of himself.

NOW he's suing the policeman for putting him to sleep before daylight!

HEROINES OF HISTORY

By Mark Sullivan

Nancy Hart, a Forgotten Heroine of the Revolution

IN Elbert County in the State of Georgia is a stream which a century ago was called "War-woman's Creek." The "war woman" for whom it was so called was an ignorant, uneducated, vulgar, common woman. But in her breast burned the real fire of patriotism and love of the young country which was hers.

For it was during the days of the Revolution that Mrs. Hart lived. She was a "Whig" and held her husband in utter contempt because he did not show more interest in the "Whig" cause and exhibit a proper hatred for the Tories.

Nancy was an extremely homely woman. She admitted that she had never seen her face in a mirror and had no desire to. She was without vanity and lived her life in her miserable little cabin, taking care of her small daughter, loving her fellow Whigs and hating her enemies with all the strength of her primitive nature.

One day while Nancy was at work a young "Whig" soldier galloped up to her door and begged for protection. He told her that Tories were pursuing him. Nancy lifted the bars of her cabin, took the young man into her house. Then she quickly led him to the back door and showed where he could hide in safety in the swamp at the back of her house.

Nancy resumed her work and hardly looked up when a party of Tories halted in and asked if she had seen a young man on horseback. She replied that she had seen such a person, but that he had turned and gone in a different direction.

The infuriated Tory officers at this demanded that Nancy give them something to eat. As they did so, one of them shot and killed her only turkey.

Nancy remonstrated and said that she did not feed traitors or kind men. But she had no choice.

While cooking the turkey Nancy managed to instruct her little girl [illegible] the tin tub on a pretext of getting water and blow the conch-shell which was there as a signal to her husband and neighbors to come to her aid.

All the while the Tory officers were drinking and making merry. They did not notice that Nancy had seized their muskets which they had stacked at the doorway—for they were too much occupied with laughing and joking.

Suddenly Nancy leveled a gun at her unwelcome guests. The all sprang to their feet, terror struck at this bold woman who swore she would kill the first man who should make any attempt to disarm.

One of the party lunged toward Nancy. She pulled the trigger. A [illegible] man instantly dropped dead. [illegible] other [illegible] terrified [illegible] and [illegible].

Then the [illegible] said that the [illegible] to her, [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] the

Oil Scandal Years Old; Both Parties Guilty

Far Greater Than a Partisan, Political Issue

It is time for the people to realize that this oil scandal is something far greater than a partisan, political issue.

Long before the elections, in November, the truth will be out, and the Democrats will not be claiming credit for virtue in the matter. Neither will the Republicans be throwing any mud at the Democrats. Both parties will be too busy wiping off the oil stains.

The plain, simple truth is that the old-fashioned and ever-present plunderers of the public domain have owned both parties alike. Whichever one of them we elect to apparent power in Washington, the real power is Privilege. This has never been more brilliantly illustrated than in these last four years, when Democrats and Republicans alike have vied in giving away to private corporate interests, for a song, billions of barrels of oil that belonged to the public, worth thousands of millions of dollars.

Forget the newspaper headlines of today, and look at this situation as a whole.

It was Theodore Roosevelt who originated the conservation policy, whether applied to forests, coal mines or oil.

Roosevelt conceived that we had an obligation to use our irreplaceable natural resources wisely and economically, and transmit a part of the heritage to the generations coming after us.

Roosevelt fought against the entrenched corrupt private interests whose cynical slogan, expressed by ex-Senator Hughes of Colorado, was "Posterity! What have we to do with posterity? Let them take what they find. That's what we had to do."

Well, Roosevelt won. Under his administration surveys were begun and, as a result, Taft and Wilson withdrew six and a half million acres of oil lands on the public domain; that is, withdrew these lands from settlement, exploitation and use, until their oil might be needed in later years, when their use would be resumed under proper conditions.

Immediately a howl arose to high heaven from oil interests that had been getting for nothing the public domain as fast as any natural resource could be discovered upon it. For ten long years they fought to break down the Roosevelt policy. In the early months of 1920 THEY WON. The title of their victory was the General Leasing Act of February 25, 1920.

Now, during all those ten years the oil interests paid little attention to withdrawal acts forbidding occupation of the withdrawn oil lands. Under every imaginable excuse they sent squatters and fake locaters upon the land and then proceeded to consolidate their titleless holdings into tracts and drill them.

They swore to false affidavits that these locations had been made before the withdrawal act. In one way or another pressure was brought to bear upon the Land Office and the courts so that titles were confirmed or tolerated and the drilling proceeded. Scores of such properties were involved in litigation when the 1920 act was passed.

Now, note the provisions of the General Leasing Act of February 25, 1920. It authorized the Secretary of the Interior to validate these doubtful titles as he saw fit.

Between thirty-five and fifty millions of dollars had been impounded in banks, representing the proceeds of the sale of oil which these men had lawlessly taken out of the government domain—oil belonging to the people of the United States.

Under the act the Secretary of the Interior could turn over seven-eighths of these millions to the men who had lawlessly settled on public lands; that is, they could have all they had produced on payment of one-eighth back royalty. The Secretary was further authorized to lease the entire public oil domain, with the exception of the Naval Reserve.

Well, the Secretary of the Interior did it good and plenty. Who was that Secretary? Fall? Oh, no. It was John Barton Payne, Democratic Secretary of the Interior under the second Wilson administration.

By a strange coincidence, John Barton Payne came into office on March 15, 1920, nineteen days after the passage of the General Leasing Act. By a strange coincidence Secretary Franklin K. Lane, who was regarded as a conservationist, left the Department of the Interior on that same day.

By another strange coincidence, when John Barton Payne, on January 1, 1918, went to Washington to work for McAdoo, he retired from the firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, attorneys for the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. The First Trust and Savings, according to the admission of its president, Melvin A. Traylor, down at Washington this month, is the bank of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. One of the bank's directors is a former partner of Payne's, Silas H. Strawn, who was nominated by President Coolidge as his Prosecuting Oil Counsel, but later rejected by the Walsh Committee because of his Standard Oil affiliation.

In his period of office from March 15, 1920, to March 4, 1921 (when Harding and Fall came in), Payne established a new world's record for giving away the public oil lands. He gave one hundred and fifty leases in the Salt Creek Field, adjacent to Teapot Dome. These leases amounted to 14,000 acres.

Mark one other coincidence. When the smoke had cleared away it appeared that the Midwest Refining Company had a monopoly on nine-tenths of the oil in the Salt Creek Field. By another coincidence the Midwest Oil Company was found in the hands of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. In fact, it was acquired by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in the month of August, 1920.

When Albert B. Fall came in, practically all the known oil in the public domain had been leased excepting the Naval Reserves. The 9,000 acres of Naval Reserve oil land in Teapot Dome were surrounded by a sea of private leases which Payne had made. Fall had an excuse for leasing Teapot Dome, because its oil was being drained off by the Payne lessees. Of course, there is no excuse for Fall's personal corruption.

There is much more to come in the Oil Scandal revelations. Keep your judgment clear, fellow citizens. Fall, Doheny and their associates are not the beginning and the end of this thing. They are simply type and symbol of the interests that have been successful in using Republican and Democratic officials alike, and will always be use such men, so long as we have anything worth stealing and so long as we are supine and stupid enough to let ourselves be robbed.

LISTEN, WORLD! -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS article is going to voice the Red Roar of Revolution. It's the Bitter Bleat of a Satiated Soul, and I don't care whose bunions it batters. For I hereby announce:

I'M FED UP ON BEAUTY!

Oh, for the days when you wore the kind of face God gave you and didn't feel you had to remake yourself into a Cleopatra or a Pompadour! I am not an old woman. I still shake a mean heel along the fairway, and there's nothing wrong with my heart action when a good-looking brunette heaves in sight. Lacking brunettes, I still take a keen interest in blonds. From which you might judge that I am reckoned amongst the livelier numbers of our local program. I am. BUT I HAVE NEVER PLUCKED MY EYEBROWS! So you know at once that I'm of the pre-war vintage, although not quite in the same class with King Tut.

Yes, I'll frankly confess I remember other and quite different days. No movie queens glowed on my youthful horizon, nor did the drug stores aim to rectify the sloppy work of Mama Nature. When I wanted a bloom on my maiden cheek I had to wet some red crepe paper and sneak out behind the barn to apply it, where mother wouldn't see me. But as a matter of fact, there wasn't even much of a sale for red crepe paper. Universal Female Beauty, like flu and appendicitis and income taxes and near-beer hadn't as yet attacked us. It was a cheap and peaceful time in which to be born.

If Providence gave your features the wholesome, hardy outlines of a monkey wrench, you accepted your lot and learned to make good biscuits. After washing your cornice with the family bar of yellow soap, you curled your bangs and basted a ruffle in your collar. That was the utmost allure practiced by Respectable Ladies. When you wed, however, you had one great consolation. You were absolutely certain that you would look as good to your groom the week after marriage as you did the week before. You couldn't look worse. You faced the world without camouflage—and, somehow, the world seemed to stand the shock.

But whatta change since Elinor dragged the tigerskin into the parlor and Theda Bara did her vampish daily dozen in the public eye! Are we content with our original designs now? I'll say we're not! Where can you find one bunch of female features in their wild estate? They're manicured and marcelled, facialed and plucked, lifted and remodeled, skinned and scraped and permanently waved until their own mothers have to identify them by thumb prints.

Now if they arrived anywhere by all this manipulation I'd not have a word to say. If they had more lovers or heartier admiration, or achieved more successful marriages, I'd borrow a clay pack and start in myself. But they don't. The sad truth is that little Henrietta, after all her landscape gardening, is just the same plain, Brown Leghorn that she was before. She's just as far from being Sappho now as she would have been in 1824.

Would I scrap the beauty parlors and drug stores? Far from it. They're a fine scheme. We should all be as dainty and pretty as possible. But, for the luvva Mike, let's realize that there's more to us than Face. Let's ease up on this beauty contest and be human now and then. Good natured homeliness is a lot more restful to have around than one of those Swiss-movement faces, which require an expert to keep it in repair.

A Mother's Problem

Editor Helping Hand:

Many times I have read of your good work extended through your paper. I have four children, and the greatest problem is to find shoes for them. Their father has been out of work many weeks, and now he is on a "helping out" job, so of course he does not get very much out of it. It has been many months since we have paid a bill. Could not some kind reader help us out. I have three boys, ages 11, 5 and 5 and a little girl 2 years old. I do not ask for anything for myself, as the children come first, and it is all we can do to clothe them. My husband is a small man and wears size 2A suit and 8 shoe. I hope through your help we may be able to save a little money to pay our bills. JULIA.

Would Adopt Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there some kind-hearted person that understands a mother's heart that has a baby girl for adoption. It must have black or dark-brown hair and eyes. I lost my little girl a few months ago, and my heart has been broken ever since. I was told by a doctor that I cannot have any more children as the result of three operations I recently had. Baby must be between eight months and one year old. I have a good home and everything a baby's heart could really wish for. I am Catholic and of American descent. My husband is of Spanish descent. MRS. L. P.

Old Bicycle Needed

Editor Helping Hand:

I am nothing but a poor boy. My father died many years ago. I do errands for different people around my way every day to help my poor mother. I would very much appreciate an old bicycle if any of your readers has one they do not want. MARTIN.

Nothing From Husband

Editor Helping Hand:

I thought I would write to see if you could help me. My husband has not given me a cent for three months, and I have two children going to school, a boy 14 and a girl 12. I have only one girl working, making $14 a week. After paying rent and food, I have nothing left for clothing. The girl that is working is 17 years old and she can never get anything to wear. The little girl has only one dress, and the boy is badly in need of a pair of pants

DR. FRANK CRANE ON WHAT IS YOUR OPINION NET?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHAT is your opinion net?

Of course we know what your opinion gross is. You talk about it, you defend it, and you fall back on it. You exhibit it and stand up for it.

But did you ever try to dig into it and take it apart and see how much of it is yours, how much of it is your real Simon-pure conviction?

Ideas net are very hard to determine. Most of them are mixed with a good deal of extraneous matter. If you take a drink of water after cleaning your teeth with soda the water tastes sweet no matter how flat it tasted before. The water is the same but the change is the reaction that has taken place in your mouth.

Every idea that is communicated to you has to mix and form a sort of chemical compound with the ideas that you already have. If one tells you something that is blue, and your mind is yellow, the resulting idea that you get will be green, that is, a blend of yellow and blue.

Ten people can see an accident in the street and their ten reports of it will differ amazingly one from the other.

You sometimes wonder that what you said has been so misconstrued. What you said was perfectly plain and simple, but it has been dyed with the color of every mind that heard it, so that when it is repeated it is what you said, plus or minus something else.

If you put a stick into a bucket of water the refraction will make it look as if it were bent. So, when you tell a man anything you must take into account the refraction that takes place in his mind. It will hardly ever come out of his mind exactly as it went in.

Thoreau said, "It takes two to tell the truth." That is, it not only takes a man who tries to tell the truth, but a listener who wants to hear the truth.

As our experience increases we become more careful what we say and to whom we say it, for we learn that there is not much use trying to say a thing to one who is not prepared to receive it.

Education does not consist so much in imparting information to youth as it consists in training youth to receive information and to know what to do with it. This is a "fine pretty world," but there are any number of people who are walking about in it who think it is more or less of a prison and a vale of tears.

The sun shines brightly every day, but most of the people you meet have colored glasses behind their eyes.

It is not easy to see things as they are. It is quite difficult and comes only with long training and the steadfast desire to know the truth.

Why be either an optimist or a pessimist? Why not be an actualist?

For there is a certain joy in ideas net that is not to be found in ideas doctored with any sort of flavoring matter.

To the healthy and normal mind nothing is so sweet as the truth.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON TIME'S PUZZLES

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Two friends, A and B, have had a discussion pertaining to modern and future transportation. A claims that with a machine travelling 1,200 miles per hour he could circle the earth in twenty hours, thereby gaining four hours on the rotation of the earth, making A four hours younger. A claims his watch would read 12 when B's, standing on the earth, read 4. Kindly advise whether this is so.—D. B., Bronx."

THIS is an old puzzler under a new guise, and it once gave the world one of its best tales, as I shall show.

To simplify the data, assume that the place of the experiment is on the equator, and that the distance around the earth there is exactly 24,000 miles, making the speed of rotation 1,000 miles per hour. Then "A," traveling 1,200 miles per hour, in the same direction as the earth's rotation (from west to east), gains 200 miles per hour on "B," who remains at the starting point and is carried around only by the rotation.

Then in 20 hours "A" will have gained 4,000 miles on "B" and in 24 hours 4,800 miles. In five times 24 hours—that is—in five days—"A" will have gained a full circuit, or 24,000 miles and will have overtaken "B."

Suppose that it was noon when "A" first set out. Of course it would be noon for "B" also, the two being together at the same point on the earth. After the lapse of twenty hours from the start "A" would arrive under the sun again, so that it would once more be noon for him; but "B" would arrive at noon four hours behind "A," so that "B's" time would be 8 a. m.

After another twenty hours "A" would again be under the noon sun, while "B," now 8,000 miles, or one-third of a rotation, behind, would have 4 a. m. Still another twenty hours would place "A" again at noon, but for "B" it would be midnight.

After eighty hours (four turns of "A") "B's" watch would again mark 8 a. m. when it was noon for "A." After 100 hours "A's" noon would correspond with "B's" 4 a. m. once more, and finally at the end of 120 hours (six turns of "A") they would be together at noon, "A" having gained a full rotation on "B."

It will be seen that there is an apparent confusion of days here, which arises from the fact that the calendar day begins to count from midnight, and the twenty-four hours are divided into two twelve-hour periods. "A," going east, meets the rising sun sooner than "B." Every twenty hours he gains, in this way, four hours, so that in six times twenty hours he gains twenty-four hours, or a whole day.

But now mark. "A," in his six twenty-hour circuits has seen six successive returns of noon, while "B" has seen only five. If it was Monday noon when "A" started, then, for him, if he reckons the number of days by the number of returns of the sun, it is Sunday noon when he overtakes "B." But for "B," who has remained at the same point on the earth, it is only Saturday noon.

Now, the speed with which "A" travels makes no difference in the final result. If he gained only one mile, instead of 4,800 miles, in 24 hours his total gain at the end of the circuit would correspond, in time, to a whole calendar day. And this was the basis of Jules Verne's unique story, "Around the World in Eighty Days," to which I referred.

The hero of that story won a bet which he thought he had lost by going eastward around the earth, and thus unconsciously gaining a day. By going westward he would correspondingly have lost a day. The clue to the whole puzzle is that the days are reckoned by the successive passages of the sun over the meridian. If, then, by traveling westward you lengthen the time required by the sun to come around again to your noon line, you lengthen the day (for yourself), while if you produce the opposite effect by moving your meridian to meet the sun, you shorten the day (for yourself.)

The implications of these things with the Einstein theory cannot be discussed here. Most of us have an inherent belief in the independence of time and space, and navigators who did not act in accordance with that belief would not long continue to enjoy the glimpses of the moon.
